SOCIALIST LABOR PARTY IN MOVE FOR SOCIALIST UNITY

a united and developed party of Socialism exists, demonstrates, first, the possibility for all Socialists recognizing the principles and decisions of the International Socialist congress, to present with immensely increased effect a united, solid front against the common enemy—the capitalist—and to address a united, harmonious appeal to the working class, which is so much more responsive when confused, distrust and demoralization, created by internal strife and division in the Socialist camp, are eliminated; and second, it demonstrated the possibility of such cooperation based upon the recognition of the right of minority division of a united party, to advocate their particular views through their own publications, and their own minority delegate to national conventions and international congresses; and

A False Dispatch and Foolish Editorial

The Socialists of Chicago held a municipal convention a little over a week ago and adopted a platform for the spring campaign.

Now behold the result as it appeared in the capitalist press. The story as it was telegraphed out read as follows:

Chicago Socialists have promulgated their platform for the coming city campaign and declare themselves ready for the fray.

On this statement of facts (?) the New Orleans Times-Democrat wrote a lengthy editorial ridiculing the demands for "free" things.

It is not public charity that the average American wants, but the chance to work for a livelihood.

The simple fact is, as all those who read the Daily Socialist report know, that there was no mention of anything being furnished "free."

Furthermore, the Socialist platform in question is the only one that will be before the voters of Chicago this spring that will insist that "it is not public charity that the average American wants, but the chance to work for a livelihood."

The new Chicago platform as outlined in the press dispatches is not a shining example of any "set of Socialist principles," but it is a shining example of the lying character of those press dispatches.

That the New Orleans editor was foolish enough to swallow such a dispatch would seem to indicate that there was more than the ordinary ignorance of Socialism in the vicinity of the editorial chair of the "Times-Democrat."

"Scientific Charity"

Present society has put its impress deeply upon even its philanthropy. It has organized and systematized the process of relieving the vast mass of poor which it creates.

Out of all this there has been evolved something that has been given the high-sounding name of SCIENTIFIC CHARITY.

This is almost the only new science that capitalism has created. It is a very distinctive product. While many volumes have been written to explain its principles, yet they can all be summed up in one sentence—SO TREAT THE APPLICANTS FOR RELIEF THAT THEY SHALL REMAIN GOOD WAGE SLAVES.

Each case must be carefully investigated to decide what method of treatment will best preserve the characteristics most valuable to the profit taking class.

If the applicant shows any signs of unwillingness to continue to produce wealth, if he evidences any inclination to model his conduct after the givers of charity and try to live without work upon the labor of others, then he is UNFIT and should be cast out.

"Scientific charity" never dares to enter into any discussion of the causes of the phenomena which it pretends to study. It is frightened at any glimpse behind the individual that would show the forces that are pushing him into poverty.

Just now the followers of this "scientific charity" are making themselves as conspicuous as possible. They are pushing to the front with wise advice on the treatment of the unemployed.

Make him work before giving him a cent. Send him out hunting for work, even though you know there is none for him to find. Keep telling him of the possibility of getting a job so that he will help to keep down the wages of those already at work.

These, in plain, simple English, are the maxims of organized scientific charity today.

A BOOST MEETING IN A WESTERN TOWN

BY P. DUNDAS JODD

To a man who has spent most of his life in a large city a boost meeting in a young western town is rather an interesting experience.

Yet it is a town of transients. It is a caravansary in which men pass a limited time, and then pass on. A few get handouts, another few take them by investing their wealth in acreage, holding on for months or a few years; then, like the hobo, pass on.

On the surface it looks pretentious. Land that but a few years ago could hardly be sold at any price is now changing hands at figures that make an eastern farmer hold his breath.

Yet beautiful apples are raised and big profits are made by a few. A soil of shallow depth, so uneven that it is difficult to get even a small holding of good soil, is responsible for many changes.

Enough of this—my tale concerns the boost meeting. We have an opera house, how shabby and dirty I say not, but in it are held all the public events of our city.

And when he's filled the warehouse and the master stops the mill, When he'd work for any price his children's hungry mouths to fill.

Oh, what a life for a man to live, To slave his strength away, To see the wolf without the door, more vigilant each day.

Remember it, you men who work, remember when you vote, Those two short words shall spread the world to regions far remote.

Oh, what a life for a man to live, To slave his strength away, To see the wolf without the door, more vigilant each day.

Remember it, you men who work, remember when you vote, Those two short words shall spread the world to regions far remote.

Oh, what a life for a man to live, To slave his strength away, To see the wolf without the door, more vigilant each day.

Remember it, you men who work, remember when you vote, Those two short words shall spread the world to regions far remote.

could they shout prosperity for those who owned nothing and never once indicate that the actual producers of wealth deserved a little consideration?

Then the business man, what of him? His commercial club, he claims, has made our town. Some two dozen of them have taxed themselves to the tune of $5,000 to tell about our wonderful soil, the farmers siding in no way whatever.

The laborer, Oh, he does not count, for he is content to be a pawn in the game.

We have dirt for sale and dirt to give away. Our streets are impassable mud-streams; our water system is solid with real estate in winter and takes a holiday in summer.

We are a practical people, for are not the teachers these days getting our school children to write boosting letters which are to be mailed to eastern schools to advertise our great and glorious country?

Our election is over. The Socialist vote is 10 per cent of the total, the old administration is re-elected, and nobody is satisfied, but we kept out the crazy Socialists, anyway.

And the laborer is getting hungrier; he voted for what he did not want, and is angry because he gets it.

Truly, all upward progress is against gravity; only to be accomplished by propulsion and compulsion.

"GOD KNOWS!"

BY LEWIS C. DE HART

Oh, tell us, Mister Statesman, what's a workman to do When he's spent his little savings and he cannot earn a sou.

When his children cry with hunger and they freeze for lack of clothes? Does the statesman solve the problem? Ah, his answer is, "God knows."

And when he's filled the warehouse and the master stops the mill, When he'd work for any price his children's hungry mouths to fill.

Oh, tell us, Mister Statesman what to do. He says, "God knows."

Oh, what a life for a man to live, To slave his strength away, To see the wolf without the door, more vigilant each day.

Remember it, you men who work, remember when you vote, Those two short words shall spread the world to regions far remote.

A Workman in the Courts

This is the story of the legal struggles of a working man to secure damages from one of the big corporations of the city after he had been maimed and crippled for life in its service.

Harry Rooney was a lineman and a member of Local No. 9 of the Electrical Linemen's union. On June 11, 1902, he was working at Elston and Armitage avenues, finishing some new construction work for the Commonwealth Electric.

The fingers of his left hand, burned off, dropped into the alley below him. For twelve months he lay in the hospital, three months of that time unconscious.

Accidents to employees of the Commonwealth Electric Company were at that time handled by the London Guaranty Accident Company. Immediately after the accident that company proceeded to secure witnesses in its effort to fight the damage case that would be brought against it.

The case has been tried three times, and on the 13th of January, 1907, the jury in the trial held before Judge Chetlain awarded the injured man damages of $30,000. This decision of the trial jury was affirmed by the appellate court.

In the trial of the case the London Accident company brought as witnesses into court two persons, one the foreman under whom Rooney was supposed to be working, the other an Andrew Jackson Hudson, a workman, who swore that he was in the alley below Rooney when the accident occurred, talking with the foreman.

The complainant brought as witnesses five women who live on the alley in which Rooney worked and who were watching him work and swore that the foreman and Hudson were not in the alley.

The two star witnesses of the insurance company when under cross examination developed some curious aberrations of memory. While Hudson claimed that he was a stranger in Chicago and yet could carefully and minutely describe the location of the alley in which Rooney was injured, he was unable to tell how he came and went to his own boarding place on Wells street, and could not give the number of the house where he boarded.

The appellate court in commenting on his testimony when affirming the decision of the trial court characterized the witness as having a most "eccentric memory."

George Beals, the foreman, also showed a strange lapse of memory when under the fire of the cross-examining attorney. When asked whether he ever described the accident to any one he inadvertently replied: "How could I ever I did not see it?"

Of the testimony of this witness for the London Guaranty Accident Insurance Company the appellate court says: "His testimony was flippant, reckless and indifferent."

Although the appellate court has thus condemned the London Guaranty Accident Insurance Company for encouraging the perjury of witnesses, and although the injured man has now received a favorable verdict after fighting for five years in the courts, he has not yet received any money and is still supported by his wife.

The case has now been appealed by the insurance company to the supreme court, but it is believed by Attorneys Morse Ives and A. Lauth, who tried the case for Rooney, that a favorable decision for the injured man will be secured from that court, since the appellate court has approved of the trial court verdict.

OIL-OWNED

Christian Dredger, who totals up figures for Standard Oil, is authority for the statement that more than 99 per cent of the oil business of Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, Montana and New Mexico is controlled by the Standard Oil.

An apology is herewith tendered to Standard Oil for having underestimated the extent of its business. There have been some very wild guesses made as to how much of the oil industry of the country the Rockefeller people control. But no one ever imagined that Standard Oil had a complete monopoly in no less than five of the Rocky mountain states.

Still, that is only part of the story. Standard Oil light, to be sure—on what influence has been at work to lubricate the machinery of justice and legislation in these western states.

When a little more light—not Standard Oil light—is thrown on the Rockefeller group it is "doing business there is no telling but what every last hundred thousand dollars in the country will be found to be invested in industries obedient to the voice from 25 Broadway, New York city.

Nor can Standard Oil be charged with being unfaithful to the great trust reposed in it. Standard Oil has worn itself bald in caring after the necessities of the various states, as well as deducing policies for the national government. If republics were not proverbially ungrateful the motto on gold dollars would be changed to "In Standard Oil We Trust."

The monopoly of the Standard Oil and its tremendous power can not be compared with any monopoly in history. In this country alone $800,000,000 of people pay tribute to one man, John D. Rockefeller. The tyranny of George D. Rockefeller. The tyranny of George D. Rockefeller. The tyranny of George D. Rockefeller.

How long will the American people be content to remain at the mercy of the greatest despotism of all time, the absolute monopoly of the source of bread and life? How long before they realize that the only question is: Shall the trust own the people or the people own the trust?

Shall it be capitalist monopoly for the few or Socialist democracy for the many? JOSEPH E. COHEN.

down from the north and all the earth is wrapped in a shroud of ice, hearken not to the voice of the hypocrite, who will tell you that it was ordained of God that "the poor ye have always, and the needy, I will tell you that you that you "drank up all your wages last summer when you had work, and that is the reason why you have nothing left to purchase a bit of food with which to appease the pangs of hunger."

Have you not worked hard all your life to be old enough for your labor to be of use in the production of wealth? Have you not toiled long, hard and laboriously in producing wealth? And in all these years you received only enough to keep body and soul together.

What a splendid thing it would be if you could see the face of your employer when he saw you toiling away, twelve and sixteen hours in the twenty-four, that during this time in all these years you received only enough to keep body and soul together.

Do you know the cause of all this misery? The Socialist is the only one who knows the cause; the only one who dares tell you the remedy. During that last period of "Unparalleled Prosperity" you worked in a factory, that factory was owned privately by a capitalist; for example, in one day's toil you produced, say, ten dollars' worth of wealth, you only received about one dollar. Your master robbed you of the rest! You could only purchase back about two dollars' worth of what you had produced, soon the shelves (owned by the boss) were groaning under the weight of wealth that you and your class had produced.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Woman's Worst Enemy

BY EVA OSLER NICHOLS

Bill and Joe only in their willingness to die for the wolf without the door, more vigilant each day.

The charge that "woman's worst enemy is woman" is believed probably for the same reason that children believe in Santa Claus. But let us reflect.

Woman has been penned in the harness, forced to work for the boss, or sold at the will of man. If she remonstrated she was smothered with sentimental adjustments about "woman's propensities," etc.

In the nineteenth century members of the oppressed sex organized and clamored for their rights. One result of their efforts was the repeal of many cruel laws which discriminated against women.

It was something of a surprise when Lovejoy began his lecture. "For the people of the United States to learn on the publication of the twelfth census in 1900, that child labor, which many had regarded as an historical subject purely, and one that was of live interest in England 50 years ago, was really not of the past but of the present."

It was admitted by the census takers themselves that the reports obtained were far from the real facts. When the census showed that we had 1,750,000 children so employed, and when it was admitted by the census takers themselves that the reports obtained were far from the real facts.

Lovejoy, during his address spoke of the "army of child labor" often made by the farmer, to the effect that he himself worked on a farm when a boy of but eight years' growth. In reply to this Lovejoy showed the radical difference which money had been made by obeying laws that after a boy has worked but a few weeks in a dry coal breaker his lungs become so coated with the black dust with which the air is filled that they can never be entirely cleansed of it.

On Child Labor

(From a Lecture by Owen Lovejoy.)

"Child Labor in This Country" was the theme of an interesting lecture delivered recently by Owen Lovejoy at Utica, N. Y. Lovejoy's descriptions of the conditions under which many children work in coal breakers, mills and glass factories were illustrated by photographs thrown on a screen by a stereopticon.

"It was something of a surprise," began Lovejoy, "for the people of the United States to learn on the publication of the twelfth census in 1900, that child labor, which many had regarded as an historical subject purely, and one that was of live interest in England 50 years ago, was really not of the past but of the present."

TO THE EDITOR

VICTIMS OF CAPITALISM A word to you millions now wandering about the streets and roads of this "great" country, with hands in pockets, gazing listlessly about you at the evidences of wealth and pleasure, of which you own no part, not sufficient even to purchase a bit of food with which to appease the pangs of hunger."
