Clergy Dictries Action

Immediately on the surrender of Barcelona the archbishop of Catalonia sent a dispatch to the government, charging the conductors of "the godies: schools and the secular press" with being responsible for the uprising and demanding their suppression, "because otherwise it will be impossible to restore peace among the people (pues de contrario no seria posible la paz en le contrario no seria posible la paz en los pueblos). Prancisco Ferrer the Pivot

This man is acknowledged to be one of the greatest and noblest educators of modern times. Once before (only three years before) he stood in the shadow of death, because the Spanish government, seeking to exterminate his magnificent new system if sducation, tried to fasten upon him the responsibility for the plot against King Aifonso, which was shown later to have been concorted by the Spanish goverument itself in order to prevent reduction of their appropriations. At that time Ferrer was saved, first, by duction of their appropriations. At that time Ferrer was saved, first, by proving that he had nothing to do with and knew nothing about the conspiracy, but even more so because the entire educated and progressive Europe steed by him. This time Ferrer is charged with having instigated and led the Barcelona uprising.

The Vanguardia, the organ of the hishop of Barcelona, makes the charge that the police found in Ferrer's home a program for the destruction of society, demolition of the banks and the formula for the making of bombs.

No Material Evidence

No Material Evidence

And yet during the Barcelona uprising not a single bomb was thrown. And regarding the alleged destructive program, even the Paris Temps, which is friendly to Mora, admitted that, in the preliminary investigation, 'no material evidence' against Ferrer was found. With a certain grim bumor the Paris L'Humanita suggests that probably the story about bomb making sprung from the police having found the copy of a letter by Ferrer to Aristide Pralelle, president of the Allfance (or Universal Science, in which Ferrer says that he will publish Pratelle's article. Sir Edward dedged the point, but the matter will come up again in a more favorable form. Kelt Hardle and the thirty-two labor party representatives (probably assisted by the entire Irlah party) will soon force the government to show its hand.

The Ipswitch Labor congress unknimously passed an energetic protest against the conduct of the Spanish government, charging that it actually denied its citizens the protection of civil law and justice by submitting them to summary court cartials, condemning them to "terms of imprisonment in chairs varying from shorter periods to twenty years or life imprisonment."

The Spaniards are brave. Although 5,000 men, women and children are languishing huddled together in flith and darkness in the gloomy dungeons of Mort Julich, and 10,000 are crowding the grisons of Catalonia alone for the sole offense of having protested against the war or sympathised with the victims of Spanish oppression, still even the great Madrid papers have refused to be muzzled.

New Spain Is Arising

It would indeed seem that a new Spain is rising; rising in anguish, blood and fire, it is true, surrounded by torture chambers, galleys and garrots, but there she stands and the entire liberal Europe has responded to her cry for help and her day of deliverance seems at last to be at hand.

The Newspaper Manifesto

The manifesto begins: "The press would lose all dignity if it submitted tamely any longer to the degrading position in which it has been placed by the government. The workers of the United Charities first came in contact with Mr. Ritchie first came in contact with Mr. Ritchie through the case of a poor sick boy, whose strength had given way under the continued strain of making paper boxes. "No work, no pay," is the rule at the Ritchie factory. The charity workers sought to change this. They went to Mr. Ritchie and made a special appeal that the boy's wages be allowed to continue while he was sick at home.

Wanted a Slave Catcher

This is how Mr. Ritchie's double na ture makes itself evident. He granted the wish of the charity workers, but immediately turned around and startled them by the request which he made turn. He wanted an intelligent woman, preferably Polish, as an agent to go among the foreign element of South Chicago to secure wage slaves for his sweat shops. Mr. Ritchie went on detailing his plan at length. He would send a lot of piece work out to Dunning which would be distributed among the in-sane patients at the institution; they would do the work and then he would send after it. This would be an easy matter. All the material needed was paper and paste. From this the paper boxes for Mr. Ritchie and Joy for the Insane would evolve.

Election Board Declaration on Special Election Affects Old Parties Only

The Socialist party is not affected by the declaration from the election board rooms that neither the Republicans nor the Democrats may nominate party candidates for the special elections November 23. With the last primary law of the state declared unconstitutiona the status of the coming special election falls back on the old primary act of 1898.

Only Old Parties Hit

"The act of 1898 applies only to parties polling at least a 10 per cent vote at the last preceding general election," according to an opinion prepared by Frank D. Ayers, attorney for the elec-tion board. "The Australian ballot law provides that parties polling at least a two per cent. vote may nominate by convention or cancus. "Hence minority parties, containing between two and ten per cent of the vote, m.y nominate by caucus or con-vention, and parties composed of more than 10 per cent of the voters have no means of nominating."

"The opinion of Mr. Ayers concerns the Democratic and Republican parties only, as we polled less than a ten per cent vote," said County Secretary G. T. Fraenckel. "The Socialist party will hold a convention as usual. The cam-paign committee will meet Thursday night to plan for it."

If the "Ifs" Come True

The great agnificance the anxious apitalist politicians attach to the opinon is its bearing upon the direct primary situation. The party bosses who are against the direct primary idea ran around in circles as they unraveled the possibilities. Prospects of the two the possibilities. Prospects of the two big parties being practically wiped out of existence for several elections in case some of the "ifs" came true were discerned by some of the ahalysts of the situation, and in many quarters the opinion was voiced that if the Ayers opinion is upheld, enemies of direct primaries will rush in a stampede to the support of a new primary law, in order to keep their parties from being wiped off the map so far as getting tickets and party appellations on the ballots is concerned.

PARSONS REPEATS CHARGES AGAINST SPEAKER CANNON

New York, Oct. 6 .- Herbert L. Parsons, chairman of the Republican county committee, repeated yesterday his charges that there had been a dicker between upstate Republican leaders and Tammany, whereby an agreement was reached for killing laws introduced at Albany last year to pre-vent election frauds if Tammany rep-resentatives in congress would com-to the aid of Speaker Cannon and help him defeat the insurgents who wanted to throw down the Cannon rules.

Parsons said that while he had full knowledge of all the men concerned in the deal, both in Albany and in Wash that in making the charges he was putting himself "in bad" with the state Republican machine and also laying up trouble for himself in Washington. He trouble for himself in Washington. He added that now he had started the fight for purer elections in this city he would carry it through to the end, no matter what the cost of it to himself politically.

Parsons said the only way to defeat Tammany frauds in this city was to have enacted such bills as were pre-sented at Albany last session for the betterment of the voting system, and that if necessary in order for those bills eventually to be passed by the legislature he would make the matter

WOMEN'S BATTLE LED BY HARDIE

Socialist in the Commons Takes Up the "Hunger Strike" Question

London, Oct. 6. - Through Keir Hardle, Socialist, the fight of the militant English suffragists is now being waged on the floor of the house of commons. With the appeal of "Votes for Women" silenced in the galleries of Britain's law-making body and the suffragists conducting a "hunger strike" behind prison bars, it has re-mained for Hardle to keep up the battle.

While the members of the capitalist parties are wrangling about the budget and the suffragists are being forcibly fed through tubes in their dingy prison ing to Hardie for his support. Hardie's latest move in behalf of the women came last night when the prohalted while he compelled the legis lators to go into the treatment being given the suffragists. Hardie wanted to know if the women prisoners were suffering any injuries as a result the treatment being accorded them.

The prison doctor was called in and claimed that the general health of the suffragists was continually improving. Mr. Hardie presented several reports issued by eminent medical authorities to the effect that feeding by tube al-ways was injurious and of fatal.

Hardie Will Enlighten Officials

Mr. Hardle is preparing a report to this effect and will send it to the gov-ernment officials in an effort to enlighten them on the matter. Mr. lighten them on the matter. Mr. Mas-terson, parliamentary secretary of the home office, declared he had heard nothing of the reports which Mr. Hardle referred to. The matter, however, will be investigated at length, and is expected to be brought up before the house of commons again in the near

The Class Struggle to Be Depicted at Hull House

for Three Nights *

for Three Nights *

A Socialist play, one that deals with real life in the mines, has at last struck Chicago. During the latt two years many plays have been credited with depicting the class struggle, and many have had a slight tinge of Socialism. Thousands of people, lured by the report that such and such a play depicted the class struggle, have play depicted the class struggle, have a play depicted the class struggle, have play the report that such and such a play depicted the class struggle, have play depicted the class struggle and many had been to me that all the court injunctions and bats on the head that have been that all the court injunctions and bats on the death that have been the baily social spent their hard earned money in or-der to witness a so-called Socialist play, only to leave the theater disappointed. None of the plays thus far presented were real life plays, and the class struggie occurs only in real life.

A Real Socialist Play

"The Commoner's Daughter," written by Mae Campbell-Brennan, is a real life play. Mrs. Brennan and her hushand have experienced the class strug-gle. They have lived it and later spent years in the study of social wrongs and their cure. The play is based on the strugg' of the mine workers with the mine corners, and Mr. and Mrs. hennan spent over six years prepar-ing the play for the stage. Only the best of actors have been secured for the cast, and no expense has been spared in preparing it for presentation. The scene of the play is laid in a mining district. The characters are mine owners and miners. The opening act shows a conference of the mine owners, at which they are planning ways and means of ending a strike. In this conference are shown men of In this conference are shown men of opposite natures. One of them, Richard Bradley, junior member of a mining concern, is the uncompromising capitalist who despises workingmen who have minds of their own, and slurs them on sight. The other, John Arlington, one of the delegates to the conference, is a conciliatory man, who, although rich, feels that the working class has its rights. Tom Shanpon. ing class has its rights. Tom Shanpon an old miner, appears before the con-ference as a representative of the strikers, and after some hot words Bradley leaves the room, taking with him an insulting ultimatum from the mine owners. Sheriff Hearn, who was placed in office through the efforts of Bradley, is shown as the willing tool of the mine owner.

Has a Socialist Hero

In the second act the audience is brought face to face with Jim Rollins, miner and Socialist. He is an advocate of peace. In fact, it is he who holds in check the rebellious miners, who, starved but determined, wish to wreak their fury on the mine owners. He shows them the folly of violence and little by little convinces them that He shows them the folly of violence and little by little convinces them that their dissatisfaction should be registered at the ballot box. He is the direct apposite of Sandy McFale, a hotheaded union miner and a strenuous advocate of violence, with whom he has many spirited arguments. The character of both is best shown in an altercation which takes place between the two at a special meeting of the unionists on strike. Sandy welcomes Rollins, who had just arrived, and expresses his pleasure at seeing him there.

"I hope you've come to join us," he says, as he greets Rollins.
"If you mean in violence, I have not," Rollins answers bim.

Warns Against Shedding Blood

Warns Against Shedding Blood
Sandy gets angry at this point and declares that volence is what he meant and what was needed in order to secure them their rights. Rollins then warns the miner against shedding blood and thus spoiling the clean record established in the town.

In a later discussion between Sandy,
Shannon and himself, Rollins points out the class struggle and how the Sorialists hope to cure it, in a few, well picked words, the climax being reached when Sheriff Hearn happens to oppose him and declares that Socialism is nothing but anarchy.

ing but anarchy.
Socialism Not Anarchy

Then Rollins is put on his mettle and answers the sheriff in the follow-ing words:

"No, some people who don't know any better call it anarchy, and some people who do know better call it anarchy to further their own ends. I'll tell you what Eocialism really is. Socialism is the power that's going to touch the mine and the mills with the wand of public ownership, and where we now have a stockade we'll have a school. Education will replace ignorance. Where we have poverty, we'll have plenty. Socialism is the thing that's going to make men like you and Dick Bradley lose your jobs—and that will be a d—n good job."

Interwoven With Mystery some people who don't know

Interwoven With Mystery

The whole play is interwoven with sembiance of mystery. Tom Shan on has a daughter, Molle, who from shildhood had been loved by Rollins.

She happens to cross the track of Bradley and, being beautiful, is immediately picked out by him as a victim. Being young and unsuspecting, she altmost falls into his snare. This little affair and the conspiracy gives the play humor is furnished by Felix O'Hare, a blust and hearty young Irishman who has designs upon Maggle, a soubrette, and the antics of the two are sidespiliting.

The August Bebel

Because of the interest manifested in the house "The August Rebel," at Washington, D. C., by comrades and friends of comrades in various parts of the country throughout this first year of its existence, and having been approached by quite a number who could not visit us, solicitous of knowing of our success, I take this way of saying to the Socialist public that we, my steer and I, deem our venture in the first house of its kind at the Capital of the Nation a success all around.

Our rooms were filled throughout the year. The name, "The August Bebel," It red leitiers over the front door, had no disheartening effect upon those with us not of our faith. A few young accretaries for "All party" Representatives would occasionally make a wry face when their attention was called to the name of the house, and one young man always said, "I never see it." THE CHICAGO DAILY SOCIALIST WITENCE SHALL COME RELIEF

The exposures of the Daily Socialist have at last driven the Chicago 'i'ribune into action. Because the Tribune represents the forces that rule Chicago its words on this subject are of importance.

The Tribune spoke with all the emphasis that its money could purchase on the editorial page of its Sunday edition. It repeated this same editorial "by request" on Monday. Because of the powers that are behind its authors and because of the fact that this utterance was reluctancily driven from them by the crusade of the Daily Socialist, this editorial may be taken 'n be the answer of Chicago's plutocracy to the indictment drawn by the Daily Socialist.

It is fundamentally a cry for action, for united action by the "mayor, the city council, the civic bodies and the citizens of Chicago."

It bewails the present conditions, and then continues:

The city is filled with unrest.

A multitude of civic associations are struggling for neighborhood improvement; for the purification of a long demoralized police force; for municipal efficiency and economy; for beauty anl physical improvement; for more trade. They profess to want to rid Chicago of its filth and discomfort; its crime and sordidness. But they are blindly groping along different paths and stumbling over each other in the pursuit of their particular ends.

The Association of Commerce is degenerating into a gigantic drummer concerned only with sales and not with the condition of the great warehouse and factory which we call

The Commercial club has spent a huge sum on a wonderful plan, but it has adopted a policy of perfection and will have none of compromise and prompt improvement.

The Municipal Voters' league is suffering from a squint and no longer challenges the interest which once followed its every action.

The Citizens' association is engaged in the pursuit of surface evils.

What have these bodies done to chain the industrial devils that make a hell of the factories and shear off limbs with their steel teeth?

What have they done to bring air and sunshine to the children who play in the cinder strewn streets and lots? How iar have they answered the cry of the children or responded to the words of the Master, "Suffer the little children to come unto Me and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God"?

With this indictment of these civic associations everyone must agree. The only remarkable thing that the Tribune concedes such facts.

How can these bodies do anything "to chain the industrial devils that make a hell of the factories?" They are the ones that profit by these hells. It is from the flesh and blood of the children of the sweat shop, "he men and women of the factories and the mills that these organizations draw their support. To sak such men to "chain the industrial devils that make a hell of the factories" is most literally to ask Satan to fight sin.

How can the owners of the department stores that fatten upon the underpaid labor of little girls answer that age-old cry of the children for life and love and beauty?

But the Tribune knows no others. It can think of no other source of relief. Rather, it dare not suggest these other sources, however well it may know them.

So arter returning once more to its Jeremiad over the ills that afflict the city, and bewailing the fact that the "men whom Chicago has called to public service and who are known beyond its boundaries" are such as "the Bathhouse, the Brennans and Hinky Dink, Lorimer, Sullivan and John P. Hop kins," it returns once more to the civic organizations, whose degradation it has just conceded, and appeals to them to save the city.

The only men whom it mentions with a suggestion that they might be the "leaders" for whom Chicago is waiting are "Dickinson, MacVeagh, Crane, Bowers and Norton."

The idea that Dickinson of the Illinois Central railroad, the road that discharges its employes after a half century of service in order to avoid paying them a pitiful pension, the promise of which has lured them on to overexertion through a lifetime, might help to "chain the industrial devils that make a hell of the factories," is a statement that should rouse demoniac laughter. That MacVeagh, who spurred on the fight to crush the teamsters' union and railroad its officers to the penitentiary, should bring air and sunshine to the children who play in the cinder strewn streets and lots," could occur only to the imagination of the Tribune. That Crane, who is seeking to make the schools of Chicago into educational factories, should be looked to as a leader in a fight for civic improvement for these children is a ghastly mockery.

We are not sure what Norton the Tribune means. The most prominent family bearing that name s at the head of the Norton Can company, where the fingers of young girls are chopped off in machines until a vote by a show of hands in a meeting of his employes is a sight that sends shivers through strong men.

These are the ones from whom the Tribune would have us believe relief must come.

But these are the ones that brought upon us the very things of which even the Tribune now

It was these very persons and the organizations to which we are now asked to look for help that THE TRIBUNE WAS FOREMOST IN THAT WORK.

No, if relief is to come, it will not come through those to whom the Tribune is appealing. THE TRIBUNE IS APPEALING TO THEM BE AUSE IT KNOWS THIS, AND BECAUSE, ABOVE ALL THINGS, IT WISHES TO AVOID ANY SUCH RELIEF.

There is but one body in Chicago that can "chain the industrial devils that make a hell of the fac-

THAT IS THE WORKING MEN AND WOMEN OF CHICAGO.

The impulse that will clear Chicago of graft, that will bring health and pleasure to the children of Chicago, that will abolish white slavery, that will end the hell that prevails in the factories, will come from the organized workers of this city. It will come from the body of men and women who are most hated by those to whom the Tribune pretends to look for heip.

The workers alone have no profits to gain by maintaining the "hell of the factories." They alone derive no rents from the red lights. They alone derive no advantages from school leases or political

To the Socialist party belongs the right and the duty of leading this fight. It belongs to that party as the expression of the political interests of the workers of Chicago.

The Socialist party has taken up this fight. It did not wait to be spurred into it. It did not wait until the fight would be profitable.

The Socialist party took up this fight when it was unpopular. It took it up when every force for which the Tribune speaks was hostile. It entered the battle when all the enginery of official and capitalist Chicago was arrayed upon the other side. It began the struggle without the help of a single one of the "civic associations" that the Tribune mentions.

Alone and unaided, and in spite of the opposition and hostility of public officials and powerful interests, it forced the truth to be known. Today the Tribune, thinking the time has come when "it is prosperous to be just," has entered into the fray, not to aid, not to battle against the forces of profitable crime, but to divert the fight into channels that will leave such crime unscathed.

It is the daughters of the workers who are sacrificed in the hideous dens of the levee. That sacrifice produces the gold that pays the rent that flows into the "mahogany parlors of the rich," as State's Attorney Wayman has said.

It is the sons and daughters of labor whose limbs are "sheared off" in the factory hells. They are mutilated that profits may flow to those who finance "civic associations."

Therefore relief must come from labor. It must come through the unions of Chicago, that shall fight for better conditions in the factory. It must come through the Socialist party that shall take possession of the government of Chicago for the workers of Chicago, and make it a place where men and women may live and work in peace and pleasure, enjoying the full product of their labor, and where children shall be well fed and clothed and housed and educated and given opportunity for
