The same story appeared in the organs of both of the old parties, but the article in the St. Louis Republic, the mouthpiece of the Democratic party, was the most acrimonious in the treat-ment of his speech.

Samuel Gompers, when his attention was called at the convention to the

Berger Tells of Tactics

Samuel Gompers, who was invited to be the principal speaker at a banquet given to the delegates at 208 North Eighth street, during the course of his address touched upon the immigration and kindred economic questions.

The big newspapers, following the usual course in this city with regard to the labor and Socialist movement, appeared upon the streets with front page articles intimating that Gompers expressed himself as opposed to the admission of members of the colored race into the folds of organized labor.

Victor L. Berger, during an address at one of the many meetings which he addressed in the last few days, was relating to an audience the methods and kindred economic questions.

Dear Bir: -

No doubt you are aware of the present strike in our city which involves upward of Forty Thousand workers who formerly were employed by various Clothing Manufacturers, Wholesale Tailoring Houses and Garment

It appears from present indications that the strike may continue throughout the season. While our employees were receiving highest wages and were positively contented with open shop rules, nevertheless agitators and union officials forced them to join the strikers ranks on Nov. 4th and realizing that closing our plant would spell enormous loss in trade which required many years of energetic, persistent and untiring effort to maintain, we therefore acted quickly and signed the union agreement and by so doing enables us to operate our plant as heretofore.

If you experience any trouble in getting orders filled on account of strike conditions, whether from Tailor to Trade Concerns or Garment Making Companies, then please notify the firm with whom you have orders pending to deliver them to us immediately and we will execute same at once. Furthermore, you may solicit orders without interruption, as we are in a position to look after your interests.

Trusting you will afford us the opportunity to serve you and assuring you of our co-operation at all times, we remain,

P.S. We allow the following discounts to our patrons:-

Good will and comradeship prevalled everywhere, even on the streets, when the passersby gave freely of their nick-els, dimes, quarters, half dollars, dol-lar bills and two dollar bills.

Cover Loop District

The loop district was thoroughly covered by "Strike Special" newsies. All pedestrians were given a chance to see and hear and help them. But, alas, some were blind and deaf. In an incredibly short time the girls began to return to headquarters their bags loaded with money.

Sale of Papers All day long they came in such numbers that it required about ten people, seven hours, to count the change. Thirty-five thousand papers were sold in the down town district alone.

At 5 o'clock there were comparatively few passersby who did not have a "Strike Special" in their hands, or sticking out of their coat pockets. The day was not without its amusing incidents, either.

Amusing Incidents

One newsy, selling papers close to where a wagon of coal was being unloaded, was greeted by a comrade, who informed her that her face was quite black with coal dust.

"Perhape that's the reason I'm getting so many quarters and half dolars," she replied, as she carnestly resumed her selling.

Abother newsy, when offered a penny for a paper, said with quiet dignity:

for a paper, said with quiet dignity:
"I'm sorry, air, but I couldn't possibly accept a penny for this paper."

"Regulars" Anxious

One of the little regular newsies, about eight years old, was greatly concerned about the "Special" newsies.

"Will youse sell papers every day?" he anxiously inquired, "If youse do' I'll have to find another job. I haven't yesterday. The girls were at every result of hardly any papers today. Youse girls sold hardly any papers today. Youse girls sold them all."

That the symmathy of the mable is "Miss Emma Pischel, former superingular to the symmathy of the mable is "Miss Emma Pischel, former superingular to a sold them."

That the sympathy of the public is strongly on the side of the strikers is proven by their generous contributions Saturday.

Promise More Help

While it is true a few of the girls selling papers were advised to go back to their shops and get to work, many ere assured they would win and were given promises of further help, and the special strike edition of the Daily urged to stay out and fight.

At 7 o'clock all the "Strike Special" workers gathered at the Ionian Lunch Club, 185 Dearborn street, as guasts of the Garrick nudience for supper.

The German workers have for many years already lived up to this fact, creating well united industrial and political organizations for this purpose. The German workers therefore viewed with the utmost satisfaction that the American movement is happily and steadily growing in a similar direction. "Recognizing the necessity of labor's unity on the industrial and political field, in order to successfully defend the rights of the working classes, we wish your convention all success, and we are convinced that the St. Louis convention, the played by the Illinois Malleable Iron the unity of international labor."

The gafment workers' strike played an important part in the awakening of public conscience in the Polish residents of the city of Chicago.

The initiative has always been given by the Polish Socialist press and the Polish Socialist press and the Polish Socialist daily, "Dzienink Ludowy," from the very beginning of the strike has been loudest in exposing the rapacity, cruelty and oppressive methods of the employers and their straw bosses, from which the unfortunate workers suffered.

The editorial staff of the "Dzienb.k Ludowy," with its pen and word has Seeing that they are losing ground in the es-teem of the Polish workers, of which the Polish population of Chicago is al-most exclusively composed, the organs of conservatism are coming in line with collections of money and sympathy for the strikers.

Thus the Socialist press in any lan-

She further said that the industrial education in the Chicago public schools was gradually being turned by the financial interests into trade lines which were detrimental to the unions.

The matter will be made a special or-der of business at a meeting to be held soon by the federation. A series of questions was sent out to he organizations in Chicago.

HUSTLERS & COLUMN

CONDUCTED BY WM. CHERNEY

Throw in All Your Energy!

When Chicago woke up Saturday morning it saw a new spectacle. Throughout the entire city were men and women selling special editions of the Chicago Daily Socialist for the benefit of the garment workers, who are on strike.

It was one of the biggest stunts pulled off in Chicago, and the action and pluck of the garment workers has the Chicago plute trying to figure out how it happened! It was not an accident that the Daily Socialist should have been selected. It was done because this was the only paper in Chicago that dares to stand by the strikers. And the significant part of it, the thing which the bosses hate and the thing which the other papers swallow with ill grace is the fact that the strikers and workingmen in general are finding this out! The toilers of Chicago are beginning to see that there is only one paper that they can depend on for the TRUTH!

The enthusiasm of the strikers and sympathizers Saturday was an inspiration. Shortly after they had left in the morning with bundles under their arms many had returned for more papers, as they had sold out. A large force was kept busy supplying them, and the big press was kept humming all day long grinding them out.

The day was one of life, enthusiasm and action.

Yet it is nothing so very strange. It is but the sign of the times. Everywhere people are beginning to look and listen. This is the golden opportunity for you who want to carry the banner of the revolution into new fields.

You cannot let this chance go by. You must not! It means too much! Last year on the day after Thanksgiving we had a record mail. You made a special effort to make a good record, and you made it. Now, there is going to be a record mail this year, too, from the looks of things. But now it comes not as the result of a SPECIAL effort, but AS A MATTER OF COURSE. Truly, "the world do move."

But you must help move it.

The Daily Socialist Lycum Course is working like a perfect machine lubricated with Omega oil. The locals that have taken up the offer are working like a perfect machine lubricated with Omega oil. The locals that have taken the control of the course of th

Comrades William and Rosa Bauman and their 14-year-old son William, passing through Chicago, vaited the Duily office. They were surprised at the magnitude of the Daily's printing plant, and the dispatch with which the news was turned into type by the big limotype machines.

They are all good huntlers and said that they would make more converts when they reach Filrida, where they are going.

Big Edition of Daily Socialist for Garment Workers Unsurpassed.

BY MISS EMMA PISCHEL 'A splendid success indeed!

Such was the concensus of opinion regarding the Saturday "Strike Special" venture, undertaken by the Socialist women of Chicago, for the benefit of the 35,000 striking garment work all were bright with pleasure and hope, at the prospect of assisting their great cause, in a most practical way, that of getting money for food and fuel.

Good will and comradeship prevailed everywhere, even on the streets, when the passersby gave freely of their nickels, dimes, quarters, half collars, dollar bills and two dollar bills.

Cover Loop District

The loop district was thoroughly covered by "Strike Special" newsles. All pedestrians were given a chance to see and hear and help them. But, alas, some were blind and deaf.

In an incredibly short time the girls began to return to headquarters with began to return to headquarters with their bags loaded with money.

"Regulars" Anxious

One of the little regular newsies, about eight years old, was greatly concerned about the "Special" newsies.
"Will youse sell papers every day" he auxiously inquired. "If youse do' I'll have to find another job. I haven't sold hardly any papers today. Youse girls sold them all."

That the sympathy of the public is strongly on the side of the strikers is proven by their generous contributions sentenced on Nov. 23. Crippen Hears News When Crippen was informed early today that his last hope was gone, he betrayed no emotion. Crippen, however, had realized earlier that there was no hope of clemency from the home office, and on Sunday he issued a lengthy statement, reiterat-ing his innocence and declaring that if he had unlimited means at his com-

Hanufacturers' Association Has $500,000 War Fund to Corrupt Legislators.

Charges that the National Association of Manufacturers is using part of its $500,000 anti-union war fund to corrupt educators and gain control of public industrial education, were made at the Chicago Federation of Labor meeting by Margaret Haley, business manager of the Chicago Teachers' Federation.

How It Is Done

"I know," said Miss Haley, "an edu-cator who told me that he was offered by the National Association of Manupay procured through any one of his lectures if in the course of them he would knock child labor legislation.

it was too late."

She further said that the industrial education in the Chicago public schools was gradually below turned by the financial interests hilo trade lines which were detrimental to the unions.

The matter will be made a special order of business at a meeting to be held soon by the federation.

A series of questions was sent out to the organizations in Chicago.

How Unions Answered

In brief, they first referred to the advisability of public industrial education for boys and girls between the ages of 14 and 16, the education to be in shop mathematics, drawing, etc., but not a trade education.

trade education.

To the first question ill unions of Chicago replied. Of that number 92 approved and 19 disapproved.

The second question, in brief, provided for trade schools for boys and girls between the ages of 16 and 18 and further provided that a two-year apprendiceship should be exacted from these on graduating from such schools.

To that question 112 unions replied. Eighty-eight of these approved, twenty-four disapproved.

Employers' Liability Law was also decided at the meeting to Frank Buchanan, former international firm.

The matter was brought before the limit workers, elected to congress on the democratic ticket, and who has at times been hostile to Socialist proposals, was relied on by a small faction which sought to block the consideration of the Daily Socialist proposal.

CONDUCTED BY WM. CHERNEY

Throw in All Your Energy!

When Chicago woke up Saturday morning it saw a new spectacle. Throughout the entire city were men and women selling special editions of the Chicago Daily Socialist for the benefit of the garment workers, who are on strike,

It was one of the biggest stunts pulled off in Chicago, and the action and pluck of the garment workers has the Chicago plutes trying to figure out how it happened! It was not an accident that the Daily Socialist should have been selected. It was done because this was the only paper in Chicago that dares to stand by the strikers. And the significant part of it, the thing which the bosses hate and the thing which the other papers swallow with ill grace is the fact that the strikers and workingmen in general are finding this out! The toilers of Chicago are beginning to see that there is only one paper that they can depend on for the TRUTH!

The enthusiasm of the strikers and sympathizers Saturday was an inspiration. Shortly after they had left in the morning with bundles under their arms many had returned for more papers, as they had sold out. A large force was kept busy supplying them, and the big press was kept humming all day long grinding them out.

The day was one of life, enthusiasm and action.

Yet it is nothing so very strange. It is but the sign of the times. Everywhere people are beginning to look and list.

Led by the Walden W. Shaw company, the big non-union firms in conjunction with the hotels are seeking an ordinance which will give the hotels the right to hold the space around their buildings for the use of the companies which have contracts with the hotels. "There Is No Private Business"

There is no such thing as "private business" today, declared Dr. Woodrow Wilson, Democratic governor-elect of New Jersey and president of Princeton, in an address to the Business Service League last week in Chicago.

The gist of Mr. Wilson's strangely contradictory dissertation is contained in three categorical statements he made:.

"The fundamental obligation of business is to comply with the law in letter and in spirit, and if the law is bad we are going to find it out and correct it with less poison than through the processes of "The second obligation of business is to co-operate in the extension of such parts of the law which are found to be just and

"The third obligation of business is to withdraw from politics."
He declared that the big interests "painfully resemble warfare disturbing the whole equilibrium of society." "The problem of today is whether the interests shall be masters of society or whether society shall control the interests and make them servants of the

"The small group of men who manage these corporations have the power of thousands. They control the economic organization and energy of the whole nation, and their power extends into for-eign lands, so as to make their operations subject of international politics.

Some of the irresponsible MEN USE THIS POWER IN A HAZARDOUS WAY, and there are NO MEANS to hold them RESPONSIBLE except their OWN CONSCIENCE."

The learned doctor admits the whole Socialist contention, but knows of no remedy except cumbersome and inefficient state regula-tion and the "conscience" of the rich.

We need not trouble about the "conscience" of the rich-that is a negligible factor. Even men who are aware of the poverty and ignorance to which the working class is condemned, men like Carnegie know of nothing better to do than to give libraries to the people while they continue to exploit them.

Of state regulation the doctor makes this remarkable assertion:

"If people could only find out the basis for making rates or for the Interstate Commission now. And what are fair rates? Dr. Wilson no doubt would say a fair dividend, say 7 per cent on stock after interest and bonds and rent on real estate had been paid.

6. This is the crux of the whole matter. Shall private persons and corporations own the instruments of production and distribution and derive revenues in the form of rent, interest and profit from them? In other words, shall the gifts of nature, the productive machinery and the medium of exchange, all essential in the production of food, clothing and shelter, be owned by a small class, and shall the balance of the people, the working class, pay them tribute for their use, or shall these means of production become communal property, to be held in trust for the people, for their use and benefit, upon equal terms to all, thus destroying the tribute-levying privileges of the owning class?

The former would mean the permanent establishment of a privileged class, living at the expense of the people, a more or less benevolent feudalism, while the latter is Socialism.

"Business must comply with the letter and spirit of the law," says Dr. Wilson, but since the law recognizes the right of the property owner to exact tribute for the use of "his property" from the workers who are compelled to use it, or starve, he will invariably be favored by the law over the man who has no property.

The principle of private ownership of the means of production and distribution is the foundation of modern capitalism, and it is also the rock upon which it will be wrecked.

Long before the birth of modern civilization men were vitally related to each other. Each was an organic part of the tribe to which he belonged. He lived in and fought and died for the tribe. What property there was belonged to the tribe—was communal, Gradually, through processes which cannot even be outlined in an editorial, this property fell into the hands of a small class—the aristocrats by birth, the kings by divine right—and became a barrier to the further birth, the kings by divine right—and became a barrier to the further says: "Among men, as among animals, says: "Among men, as amo

Laws encouraging the acquirement of public property and protecting the owner in its use grew into the complex of laws that con-stitute modern capitalism and endow a small class with the preogatives of aristocrats and kings.

Man, as a whole, the individuals constituting the race, is again kindred in growth and expression, by the class ownership of what should be held by the whole people, and he is about to take over collectively the property rights of the owning class.

In theory, the modern state is Socialistic. It bases its right of existence upon the consent of the governed and definitely assumes the right to limit the "rights of private property" or to confiscate the property itself for the public good (taxes) or condemn it for

It is a question of education and enlightenment. The Socialists have the logic of the situation, the trend of the age, the spirit of the modern ideal, making for their cause, while the owning class has the power of prejudice and the bulwarks of ignorance in favor of their pretensions.

These gentlemen see the licentious debauchery and the senile degradation to which ill-gotten wealth invariably leads. Harry Thaw, a fair type of a millionaire's son, does not please them, and yet neither of them have one word to say against a system that in-evitably results in millionaires and paupers. Blinded by conditions which they themselves have helped to create they salve their consciences by moralizing and preaching; by founding libraries which are used to defend the system that makes millionaires and robs labor.

opposition. This is quita natural. When has Privilege ever permitted its paws to be loosened, unless those jaws be postively broken?

The smug official persons at their roll-top desks and with their cabinet files, fortified behind their incorporated and imposing titles of Cherity Organization, Boards, Committees for This, That and the Other, resont criticism and combat exposure just as bitterly as the meanest fake collector for non-existent negro schools or imaginery "settlements" in Chinatown.

"Red tape," says Mr. Sullivan, already quoted, "is the charity worker's board-payer, deception his stock in-trade. These rogues exist by means of organizations, the object of which is for the most part to furnish a livelihood to genteel beggers, not to henseft fallen humanity. The seeds of charity grow the finest of all crops in God's vinyard, an'the Holy Nazarene is a splendid asset for tricksters, charlatans, humbugs, hypocrites and sycophants of every description.

"There is in Boston a building set apart for official and semi-official charities, called the Charity Building, on Chardon street. It is occupied by such societies as the Associated Charities, the Chidren's Aid Society and other kindred bodies. These bodies are given office rent free. "It is difficult to get any statements whatsoever from these charity workers about themselves or each other, save such data as are presented in their printed reports. Nebody likes to say anything; but they all know that they are more or less humbugs. There exists a free masonry of fraud among these hypocrites, even stronger than that among thieves. Each of these workers has something on' the others. They are all afraid. are all afraid.

"Large sums of money spent in this place in-clude the board of officers, attendants and nurses. Needless to say, much of it might be employed to better effect."

better effect."

The Associated Charities of Boston claim in their reports to "raise the need, above relief, diminish pauperism, aid the poor to aid themselves, secure harmonious action of the charities of Boston," and so forth. Yet their financial statement proves quite conclusively, to me at least, that red tape and circumlocution are their distinguishing characteristics. Look over this statement and tell me what you think of it:

They are all alike, these reports—admirable business statements, good specimens of bookkeeping on a dollars-and-cents basis, with a shrewd eye of investments, but Charity—where is it? The Associated Charities of Boston now have investments of $140,600.10-and the poor are starving! "Philanthropy and five per cent" is the motte given to his students by the Rov. Francis G. Peabody, at Harvard. I think those few concise words express the spirit of modern charity better than a volume of discourses could.

Take the Massachusetts Home for Intemperate Women, an institution against which the late District Attorney John B. Moran raised at one time so vigorous a protest. Consider its methods of bailing out unfortunate women, good husky ones, and setting them to work in its laundry, which yields an income of ever $8,800 a year, $5,400 of which goes into salaries and wages.

Read its report carefully, and tell me, if you can, where the charity feature of such an organization lies. I repeat, and I affirm, that even the "legitimate" charities are perpetrating a tremendous fraud. Their dishonesty differs only in degree, not in kind, from the host of out-and-out fake charities, some examples of which I have described in the earlier pages of this article. I have described in the earlier pages of this article.

The Farce of a Postal Savings Bank

BY R. I. NOBLE.

At last, after a quarter of a century of agitation, a bill to establish a postal savings bank has been enacted.

During all of these years the people have pleaded for a safe place to deposit their money.

Petitions and deprecations have been drawn up begging our worthy representatives for a postal savings bank.

Panics have come; hundreds of private banks have been swept away, and along with them have gone the hard-earned savings of the working-class; the sole dependence of old age and widowhood has disappeared in financial jugglety; until aroused public indignation DEMANDED a safe depository for savings.

When the people could no longer be fooled with vague promises and pre-tences the Republican party; declaring it had always been the champion of pos-tal savings banks, magnanimously passed a bill to establish them. It is a good example of a reform measure wrung from the ruling class, the capitalists. Now we have a postal savings bank; or, at least our lawmakers declare we

Of course it is hard to find. The administration did not brazenly flaunt it in our faces, but modestly established it at some country village where the infant enterprise would never suffer from competition.

It is said that even a child may deposit his pennies in this wonderful institution. It is only necessary for him to travel by rail to Oshgosh, Hoop Pole county; then by buckboard over six miles of country lanes, and at the old cross-roads he will find the great postal savings bank—only one to a state, if you please.

There, nestled among the wooded hills, if may be safely left to die. The powers that rule will in due time declare it a failure, and the banking interests may breathe freely once more.

The truth of the matter is that the banking interests will not stand for a government savings hank. Their will consider the saving areas of the saving standard or the saving saving hank.

The truth of the matter is that the banking interests will not stand for a government savings bank. Their millions of interest and profit could not be taken from the people if the government took charge of savings; and, as long as these private interests endor one may safely predict that no cavings bank will be established by our misrepresentatives.

We have begged, petitioned, and demanded in vain.

We saked for a real postal savings bank and were given a toy.

stinctively she feels the presence of the Hunger Demon, and faster, still faster, files the needle. Her fleshless fingers dart over the cloth as quick as snakes upon a table. She sits bent—stitching, stitching. For hours she sits thus.

Under the meager light of a gas let that throws a hazy mellowness over a bare room, and gleams in a few odd bits of china upon a sideboard, she tolls with her needle and thread.

The Carnegie Mill Boy and the Hook

The following editorial, under the above heading, was published by the Cleveland Press, a member of the Scripps-McRae League of Newspapers. We reproduce the editorial in full, as follows:

Ohio, who is doomed to carry two buckets of water to and fro all his life.

"He's a one-armed boy, too—and thereby hangs this story.

"This boy wasn't always a one-armed boy. Not so very long ago he was a two-armed boy, carrying water in the Carnegie milis at Youngstown. He got too near some Carnegie machinery lacking adequate rafety guards, and after that he was a one-armed boy.

"So he went to the hospital, and while there received visits from Carnegie claim agents, who told him that they would square him for the loss of his arm by giving him a job for life at $1.50 per day. That sounded like man's wages to the boy, and he accepted, signing away all claims against the company for a life job at $1.50 per day.

"Presently the boy got well and went back to work. He was given his old job, carrying water. Also he was given an artificial arm.

"But when the boss under whom he worked learned that he was getting $1.50 per day.—full man's wages for such work—he went about it to remedy the obvious discrepancy between the boy's work and his wages. So the boy's artificial arm was taken away from him, and another of more approved and utilitarian pattern was given him. This arm has a hand threaded at the wrist, so that it may be quickly unscrewed and taken of. In its place then appears every morning after the whistle blows a neat little hook, admirably adapted for engaging the handle of a water bucket.

"So now the one-armed boy is equipped for carrying two buckets of water instead of one, and the Carnegie Steel Company has neatly adjusted what might have been a loss so that it begins already to figure on the credit side of the ledger.

"The boy lost an arm and his chance for ever making anything more than the minimum man's wage.

"The company gained the life service of a man at the minimum wage.

"Slick work.

"The boss who conceived the hook scheme deserves a Carnegie medal.

"We respectfully recommend him to the attention of the laird of Skibo. Should such intelligence and zeal go unrewarded, when most any common here who has dragged some poor, reluctant suicide from the welcome water can command Carnegie medals ad libitum?

"We trow not."
