COLEMAN SHOWS UP PRESS LIES

machinery of the municipal government, as required, has been put into co-operation with the various charitable and labor organizations of the city in a concerted effort to relieve immediate distress, and to help in the solution of the unemployed problem. Nothing of this kind has ever happened before in this city, and we believe in any other American city, and it is this fact that has won the unanimous and tremendously enthusiastic support of every trades unionist in Milwaukee.

Resolutions Passed

The way the trade unionists regard these attacks upon our administration that are now being spread broadcast through the country, may best be judged by a quotation from the resolution referred to above, passed by the unanimous vote of the central labor body. It reads as follows:

"Resolved further, That we most emphatically condemn the black-hand methods used by disgruntled politicians and vested interests who are endeavoring to discredit the best administration Milwaukee has ever had, by subsidizing the press and the hired grafters in a systematized knocking of the administration.

"We call attention to the fact that every such 'knock' is a 'boost' and that the administration, clean, honest and economical, is leading Milwaukee out of its bankrupt state, in which it was left by its varied predecessors, who are now hired in this knocking business against it, and that if permitted to continue in its administration of the city, will eventually solve forever the problem of the unemployed; that the fact of the unemployed rests upon the shoulders of the vested interests of this country.

"Resolved further, That we censure every newspaper in the city of Milwaukee which has endeavored to keep the truth and the facts from the people, but for political purposes has endeavored to drag Milwaukee into the mire.

"Confidence in Administration
"Resolved further, That we express our fullest confidence in the present administration and in its officials, and our message to the people of Milwaukee is to stand by the administration.

"Rome was not built in one day; it will take several years to unburden Milwaukee of its ignominious past, but Milwaukee shall yet be the bright spot without a darkened reminder of the past.

"Citizens of Milwaukee, unite! You have nothing to lose but the sad memories of the past; you have a greater and better Milwaukee to gain."

BASEBALL PROSPECTS FOR 1911

Previous Strong Teams Bid Fair to Hold First Places Again; To Smash Attendance Records.

New York, April 12.—Six months of undiluted joy for the baseball fan, in other words the 1911 baseball season, opened today in both the big leagues.

Today begins what bids fair to be the most propitious year the national game has ever known. Baseball has grown so tremendously big and is now conducted on such a comprehensive and businesslike basis that it is pretty safe to predict that every season will be a little better on the whole than the preceding year.

It is easy enough to see why the Athletics should be such a unanimous choice for the team showed last season that it is still coming, but it is difficult to see why the Cubs should run such a bad second to New York. It is probably because the Giants made such a strong finish and the Cubs went down to such ignominious defeat before the Athletics in the world's title game.

Those who are pessimistic regarding Chicago put the proposition this way: There is more likelihood of Chance's veteran team becoming creaky than that the Giants, the Pirates or the Cincinnati Reds will not strike a swift and deadly gut and maintain it to the end.

It is differences of opinion that make horse races and the same holds true in baseball. National League followers generally would not regret to see some other team than the Cubs cop the bunting, for otherwise the prospect of the National League regarding the world's title is about as bright as the Alberta orange crop.

When Mack was asked for the line-up for his opening game this year he replied: "Take your score board of the first world's series game last year, put Orling in place of Strunk and you will have it." This means that the crafty Mr. McGillicuddy is standing pat with a vengeance.

One thing in the Cubs' favor is the improved form this year of Big Ed Beaubach, who was out of the game the first half of last year from an attack of diphtheria. Beaubach is now hurrying in the old-time form and Chance expects to use him in at least fifty games, counting the pieces, this year.

Becker may find a place in the outfield at the last moment, in place of Snodgrass. The Giants got a miserable start last year, to which fact Manager McGraw attributes the loss of the pennant. This year he counts on a better beginning and has notified his team against reverses as far as it is possible for human ingenuity to do so.

Marquard Gets Control Marquard has found the thing he needed most—control. If these two moundmen meet specifications, McGraw will have about the nicest pitching staff in the National League.

The only change in the Pittsburgh lineup is the placing of Hunter at first, in place of Flynn. Hunter is the unassuming man who has tried to play first for the Pirates since Kitty Bransfield quit Smoketown. Some of these days Manager Clark is bound to find a good man for this bag—on the law of chances—and those who have seen him say Hunter is the man.

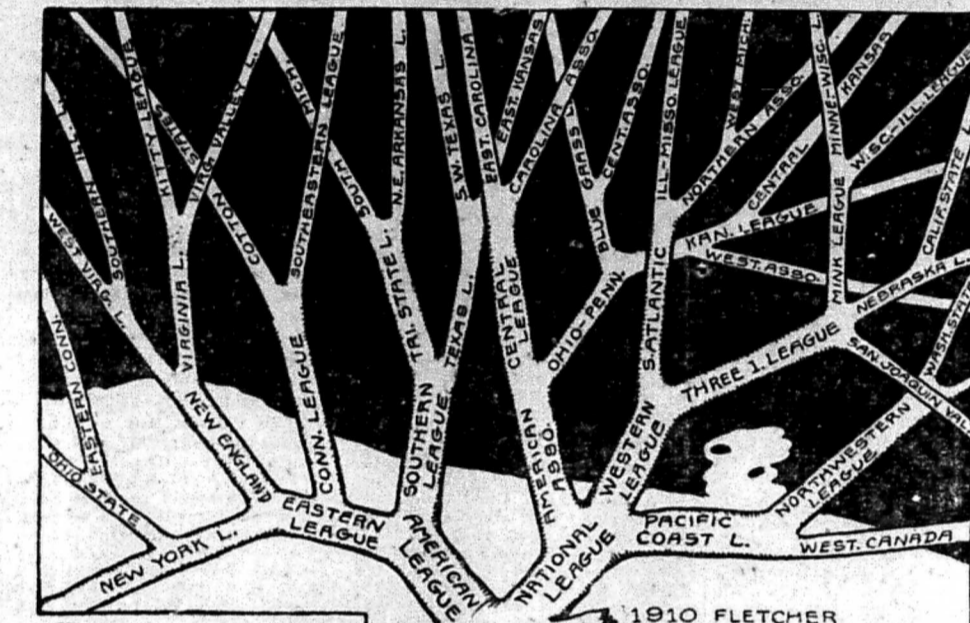

Others Won't Count There is the usual talk of Brooklyn and St. Louis breaking into the first division this year, but if either of them does, it will be the surprise of the season. As for Boston, the verdict of baseball writers is almost unanimous that she will win the booby prize hands down. There doesn't seem a chance for any other team to rob her of the honor. If any team other than Chicago, New York, Pittsburgh and Cincinnati enters the first division, the dope all points to Philadelphia, but Philadelphia is a great deal like Cincinnati in falling to measure up to expectations.

Manager Chance's New York Highlanders runners-up last year, are generally picked to repeat this year, although it will not be the same team this year. Austin at third and Laporte and Gardner at second are gone from the lineup this year. Jack Knight, who played short last year, is doing well at second, and Johnson, Hartzell and Elliott are fighting it out for the positions of third and shortstop.

It is divulging no secret to say that many New York fans doubt the managerial ability of Hal Chase. They say that a man who once deserted his team and brought about his own elevation through the medium of disorganizing clones, is not the man to hold a team together throughout an entire season. The Highlanders look strong, especially in their batteries, and have a lot of pep, but it is feared that a hard row is ahead of them.

Just Watch Those Sox Already the word has gone down the line that Comiskey's White Sox must be watched closely this year. Duffy's men have done wonderful work in practice and there is a feeling abroad that this is the White Sox year to finish well to the front. Comiskey seems to have picked up a wealth of good new material, so that his team should be well fortified at every point. Corhan, at short, looks like he would create as much talk as the harem skirt.

FORTY YEARS OLD AND STILL DEVELOPING

right field, and their successors look to be men of only mediocre ability. Cleveland fans are refraining from making any predictions, as it is realized that nearly everything depends on how Maguire's big string of young pitchers turns out. Maguire will have to rely almost entirely on youngsters in the box, as Joss, Falkenberg and Young are all tottering. Several of the Cleveland youngsters showed well toward the close of last season, but a long grinding season, when the whole circuit has learned a pitcher's stock in trade, is a different proposition. Few experts pick Cleveland for the upper berth.

Cardinals Doped to Lose The easiest thing in the world to do is to pick the most probable occupant of the last place in the American League race. Bobby Wallace's luckless Cardinals have a warranty deed to the ground floor, and if there were twice as many teams in the league the same condition would prevail. If the Cardinals have a single strength, it has been concealed up to date. Twenty-nine of the baseball writers referred to, consigned the Cardinals to the cellar, but one writer, determined to have his joke, doping St. Louis to beat out Washington.

With Jake Stahl quitting the game and Lord and McConnell traded to the White Sox, Boston will have to build up a new infield this year. Once in a while you will find a manager who will tell you that this is no snap.

SKATERS TO RACE FOR TEN MILES OVER BOULEVARDS The second outdoor street roller marathon in the history of the roller game here will be held Sunday morning, April 23, over the west side boulevards by the Riverview Roller club. The first race was held a year ago. The distance will be in the neighborhood of ten miles. About sixteen of the Riverview rink skaters, headed by Rob McLean, Eddie Melniko, John Brill and Al Krueger have already sent in their names as starters.

CUBS' GROUNDS MUDDY

Everyone in Chicago except the weather man was ready for the opening of the National League baseball season today. Early prospects were that rain and wet grounds might force a postponement of the long-expected event. Heavy rains during the night had slightly softened the west side grounds, while black clouds presaged more rain. Manager Chance of the Cubs and Bresnahan of the Cardinals declared if there was the slightest chance they would play.

SOX MEET RAIN

Detroit, Mich., April 12.—A light drizzling rain, darkened skies and an "unsettled" weather prediction greeted the baseball fans in Detroit this morning, with very little prospects of clearing skies in time for the opening of the first game of the season between Detroit and Chicago. The batteries selected for today's opener are: Walsh and Sullivan for Chicago and Mullin and Stannage for Detroit.

ZBYSZKO DEFEATS ROGERS

FRISCO TO SEE FORTY ROUNDS

San Francisco, April 12.—Forty rounds of boxing of the first class order will be seen at Dreamland pavilion April 28.

In the preliminary Pete McVey, a Seattle lightweight, and Leonard Lander, a Los Angeles lad, will go ten rounds.

Wolgaast has won $54,000 in seven big battles.

KID BERLIN TRAINS AT PRINCESS A.C.

Kid Berlin, the promising north side bantamweight, training daily at the Princess Athletic club, Wolfram street and Southport avenue, is showing signs of being a real comer. Berlin is only 18 years of age, but in his career so far he has had two fights and come out victorious in all of them.

"Kid" Berlin, said Spike, "is real game, is strong and a willing fighter. His punch is a jolt, and his physiqua is as tough as that of a plains broncho."

Berlin is matched to fight Pete Cole at South Bend soon and he will store the Hoosier boy away sure enough. He is open to meet any kid under Uncle Sam's scales at 115 pounds. Address Clyde Welch, care Daily Socialist.

Charles White leaves today for Memphis to fight Mandock at 122 pounds on April 18, eight rounds.

Brown and Gorman are billed for twenty rounds catchweights at Muskogee, Okla. Nate Lewis will jump for Memphis as soon as the Muskogee scrap is over.

Pete Savoy fights Jimmy Brady April 16 at McVicker's club, South Bend, Ind. Both are featherweights.

"Spike" Kelley will quit the boxing game for ten minutes tonight to take on Humid Kala Pasha, the "Terrible Turk" who is doing a few stunts at the Royal Athletic club.

NO SPRING MEDICINE NEEDED

Robinson Thermal Baths Clear the Blood and Prepare System for Hot Weather

Eczema and other skin diseases are caused by the accumulation of impurities in the tissues and blood. Drugs do not eliminate this poison. The most they can do is to ease the pain and itching for the time being.

The Robinson Thermal or Turkish Bath has a remarkable effect on eczema, and all skin troubles. A tremendous amount of poison is extracted from the system through the pores whenever a Robinson Thermal Bath is taken. Cases have been known where eczema or a bad case of pimples and boils have been almost entirely cured after a twenty-minute bath, taken at home. The terrible itching and burning stops, the blotches heal, and the disease disappears.

Remarkable results occur in nearly every case of rheumatism, lumbago, kidney and blood troubles, dyspepsia, third and lung trouble, nervous prostration, insomnia and constipation.

Robinson Thermal Baths can now be taken at home at a cost of but a few cents each, and with almost no trouble at all.

They are the best spring medicine, for they quickly restore the thick, heavy blood and bring renewed energy and vim.

The only way to take these thermal baths is by the use of the Robinson Thermal Bath Cabinet. The results are a real Godsend. If you are sick from any cause it will have an almost miraculous effect upon your system. If you are well it will keep you so.

NOTE: Only fifty of these coupons can be cast for any one contestant.

Clip out this coupon and send or bring it to the office of the Chicago Daily Socialist. These coupons are free.

Today is the last time the nomination blank in the great popularity contest will appear, so all contestants should see to it that they secure all of them that are available. The discontinuance of the coupon does not mean that they are no longer good. They will count as they have been counting, but contestants can only find them in papers dated today and earlier. The discontinuance does not mean that nominations are not in order; anyone wishing to enter the contest after today may do so by using any nomination coupon that has appeared heretofore, or, if none of them are available, the Daily will furnish just one for the purpose of nomination. There is yet time for new contestants to enter. The coming days will be fruitful. The contest is getting warmed up in great shape and this will make subscriptions easy to get. Everybody is waiting for the contestants to gather them in. The remaining days will see them secured in vast numbers, and while there is yet time to line up one's friends it is not too late for new contestants to enter. Note the change in the vote today over that which last appeared. This shows that much work has been done and that the contestants are beginning to see the value of haste. To see all one's friends quickly in an important feature, and no contestant can afford to wait another day before getting out and working earnestly. That excellent piano is going to be given away to one of the contestants within a very short time, and those who would like to possess such a grand prize should not permit the precious time to pass without fruitful endeavor. The real work of the contest is now fairly on and the work of each day will go far toward winning. The consistent worker is the one who wins every time. The sporadic hustler may make a grand showing for a short time, but the steady worker who keeps at it day in and day out is the one who slowly but surely attains the prize. Our advice is to use every possible moment and secure every possible vote. That is the only way to win, and the one who grasps every opportunity is the one who has to beat. Below appears the standing of the contestants as they were when the last count was made last night:

- List of names and vote counts for the nomination contest, including Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Ames, Ernest Bauer, etc.

- List of various unions and their membership counts, such as International Association of Machinists, Painters and Decorators, etc.

BURNING DAYLIGHT

By JACK LONDON

(Copyright, 1910, by the New York Herald-Company. All Rights Reserved.)

It was a quiet night in the Tivoli. At the bar which ranged along one side of the large chinked log room, leered half a dozen men...

They argued with an air of depression and with intervals of morose silence. The other men scarcely heeded them.

In a row against the opposite wall were the gambling games. The crap table was deserted. One lone man was playing at the faro table.

The roulette ball was not even spinning and the game keeper stood by the roaring, red hot stove talking with the young, dark eyed woman...

Three men sat in at stud poker, but they played with small chips and without enthusiasm, while there were no on-lookers.

On the floor of the dancing room which opened out at the rear three couples were waltzing drowsily to the strains of a violin and a piano.

Circle City was not deserted nor was money tight. The miners were in from Moosehide Creek and the other diggings to the west...

Time was heavy on their hands, their pouches were well filled and the only social diversion to be found was in the saloons. Yet the Tivoli was practically deserted...

NEW CAMPAIGN IN CALIFORNIA

Work to Elect More Socialist Mayors in Golden Gate State.

Oakland, Cal., April 12.—Interest in the municipal campaign in Oakland has been intensified by the Berkeley election, which resulted in the victory of the Socialist candidate, J. Stitt Wilson.

The Oakland Socialists, who have a complete ticket, headed by Thomas Booth for mayor, held a big jubilation on the streets after Wilson's election had been assured.

They expected assistance from Wilson and from eastern speakers of the party who were active in the Milwaukee fight, where Emil Seidel was elected mayor by the Socialist party.

Speculation as to the effect of the Berkeley election upon the political situation in Oakland leads to the opinion that the primary fight will narrow down to a contest between Mayor Mott and the Socialist candidate.

That opponents of the present administration who are unfavorable to the Socialists will drop minor mayoralty candidates in fear of Socialist success and support Mott, appears to be a foregone conclusion.

At Alameda, Cal., a municipal campaign is also on. The Socialists have placed a full ticket in the field. Their candidate for mayor is S. Miller; for auditor and assessor, C. S. Warner; for treasurer and tax collector, J. H. Reese; for members of the city council, F. G. Welz, Edward J. Hackett, E. J. Patterson, A. H. Breckwoldt, Robert C. Dunbar.

On the ballots used here at municipal elections no party designation are allowed. Folk surprised Ex-Governor Folk of Missouri in speaking here on a tour of the Pacific coast. He was surprised at the election of J. Stitt Wilson.

Special Correspondence. Duluth, Minn., April 12.—Duluth Socialists are planning to celebrate the Socialists' International holiday, May 1, with a big parade, to start at 7:30 in the evening, and a mass meeting.

The parade will start at the courthouse and proceed through the principal streets to the hall which will be secured for the mass meeting. Other labor organizations will be asked to join, as will the Socialists of other nearby towns. Addresses will be made by the leading Socialist orators of the city.

AIRSHIP TURNS TURTLE. DROPS INTO OCEAN. Monte Carlo, April 12.—While attempting a training flight from France, to Corsica, Lieut. Begue lost control of his hydro-aeroplane while 1,500 feet above the sea. The machine turned turtle, but he managed to get free from his seat and kept afloat, after landing in the water, until a launch from the conveying torpedo boat picked him up. He was uninjured, but his machine was lost.

"Surge along, you-all!" he cried. "Surge along and name it. This is my night and it ain't a night that comes frequent. Surge up, you Siwash and salmon eaters. It is my night, I tell you-all."

A STORY ABOUT A PECULIAR BIRD

The Butcher Bird Hasn't a Regular Butcher Shop, But Hangs Its Meat Up in Trees.

SHRIKE, OR "BUTCHER BIRD"

We are pretty safe in saying that this fellow is a nonunion butcher. He has the unsovereign air of a born "scab"—seems to have a grudge on all creation.

When other birds see the butcher bird coming they get out of the way as fast as they can, for the butcher bird not only kills little birds, mice and insects when he is hungry, but also when he is not. Those that he can't eat right away he hangs up to serve for a rainy day.

The northern shrike, as the butcher bird is commonly called in books, is a bluish ash bird with black wings and tail, about the size of a robin.

He spends his summers in Canada and his winters in northern United States. He isn't classed as a bird of prey, but there isn't a hawk or an owl that can hold a candle to him when it comes to killing things.

Some people think he kills things just for the fun of it—as little boys sometimes cruelly kill frogs and other harmless creatures.

The shrike gets the common name "butcher bird" from his habit of hanging dead birds and mice on trees. When he has more fresh meat than he can eat away he simply hangs up the extra carcasses.

If you ever see a dead mouse or a dead bird hanging from a thornapple spike or from the sharp hook of a briar you may be sure a butcher bird has hung it there.

Sometimes the bird comes back and eats the bird or mouse he has hung up, sometimes he doesn't.

The shrike is a pretty good citizen for all his bloody ways. He kills more mice than birds, and besides kills lots of grasshoppers, beetles and other insects in the north where he spends his summers. And he thinks nothing of killing half a dozen pestiferous English sparrows in half a day.

In the next story we shall learn something about bird masons and cement workers.

Hat for Fair-Skinned Girl; Very Latest Bits of Neckwear

This is a hat which will be popular with the fair-skinned girl, because nothing sets off her pearly tints so well as the broad, rolling, black-velvet-faced brim.

The hat itself is cream-colored leghorn, and trimmed with a mass of short ostrich feathers. Just a bare half inch or so of the leghorn shows at the edge of the brim.

Neckwear plays an important part in the spring array of the fashionable female world. A dainty lace and insertion trimmed sailor collar, and graduated side fringe of sheer linen is worn by the girl who posed for this photograph, which indicates that these are the latest fancy.

Good Returns From Onions

Australian has taken a step forward. It is a remarkably solid onion and yields heavily.

The Bermuda has the record for producing the largest crops, growers having harvested nearly eighteen tons to the acre. When you consider that 56 pounds make a bushel, and the grower generally gets an average of one cent a pound, you can figure out that some men make big money from onion crops.

Onions may be grown from seed, or in the field or garden, or from sets, or buttons, purchased at the seed stores. It is customary to sow four pounds of seed to the acre. That cost, probably a dollar a pound. The work of cultivation, except in thinning and weeding, is done by horse and plow, or by hand plows and weeders. I use the hand plow, costing me three dollars.

The new method of onion growing consists in transplanting from seed beds and cultivating as any other crop. Seed is sown in small beds or boxes in early spring. When the plants are four to six inches high they are taken up and set in rows eighteen inches apart, the plants being four to six inches apart in the rows.

That insures a more perfect stand, better tubers, and more uniformity in size.

For a small patch it is best to mark out furrows with the hand plow, drop the plants in the furrows, leaning the tops upward and covering with the plow, that also fills the furrow.

The best crop of onions I ever harvested was grown from sets. I made furrows with the hand plow about 18 inches apart, put in the sets, four to six inches in the row and covered first with leaves and then with soil.

The onions were pulled and bunched and sold fresh in the spring. A small plot, planted in this manner, brought cash returns equal to a thousand dollars an acre. I purchased the sets from a dealer, but the following season had my own sets by sowing seed thickly and allowing the young onions to ripen during August. They were kept over and planted the next spring.

Western onion growers market their bulbs in ordinary cents or grain bags.

There are several varieties of choice onions. The Danvers probably takes first place on most city markets. The Silver King is at the head of the white family. In the last few years the Brown

The Evolution of Woman's Attire

Woman's Wear Reflects Steps of Woman's Development

The noticeable changes in woman's dressing that have taken place are the reflections, as in a mirror, of the different steps in the development of the fair sex. Given a prominent period in the history of women, the dress of the men of the time, and one can guess fairly accurately the costume of the women.

In the ancient nations that reached a high state of civilization, woman attained in several cases an equal footing with man. Wherever this happened the dressing is quite similar. The Egyptian woman (Fig. 1), for instance, wore a tunic exactly like the men's, only her sash was tied.

The Greek women wore most beautiful flowing gowns, elaborately figured and bordered, at one and the same time both simple and complex. The full long skirts and general abundance of material of figure 2 may have been inconvenient, but the costumes were extremely picturesque and probably entirely satisfactory considering the climate and the needs of the time.

The women of the eastern countries had a similar tunic, more elaborately ornamented in rich patterns and confined at the waist by a girdle. The women of Rome dressed very much like those of Greece.

After the fall of the Roman empire in 395, some form of the tunic, or long, loose gown, short upper tunic and hood prevailed up until the Norman conquest in 1066.

The most marked change previous to this period was the development of the sleeves, which fitted closely down the whole length of the arm and then continued on abnormally until a knot had to be tied in them to prevent stumbling over them, or else they terminated in a bag or pouch at the wrist.

With the advent of the Normans, the men inaugurated their extravagant era of dress, but it took about a century for the women to forsake their old simplicity.

The sleeves again became elongated and were made of a different color from the dress, then the hair was braided in long plaits that hung down the back or over the shoulder and was often incased in a silken sack, finished with a tassel at the end. The gowns became immoderately long.

By the latter part of the thirteenth century the tunic had changed to a tight-fitting waist with loose sleeves and a long trained skirt.

The excessive amount of cloth used in the costume caused harsh censure from the monks and satirists. In the fourteenth century the ladies had started out fairly on their career of extravagance. Figure 3 wears a long gown covered by a tight-fitting upper tunic; she seems very proud of her gloves. Her headress has grown very extreme, being arranged in a net with two streaming contes.

Now neck and neck with the masculine element in ostentatious dressing, the women pass the men by adopting headresses of such huge size that it is hard to believe they were ever worn. Figure 4 headress was actually worn and many even more extreme.

The skirts became very voluminous, fastened at the waist with wide belts of contrasting color. The waist was open at the neck and had tight sleeves with huge turnback cuffs. Tall steeple-chase hats with soft flowing scarfs of gauze, though grotesque, are artistic in comparison to the horned affairs so much worn by figure 5.

When the great vain Queen Elizabeth ruled in England, another marked change took place in the style of women's dressing. The very high waist line dropped to a very long pointed one, the stomach came into vogue, the sleeves grew tight and long, and a great ruff of terrible proportions adorned the neck, while the skirt became stiff and round like a bee hive with a slit up the front, showing a richly embroidered petticoat. (Fig. 6).

But the hooped petticoat continued to spread until in 1740-1745 it could stretch no further. It took a royal command from George IV. to abolish these enormities. As the skirt grew more modest in size, the headress once more grew more daring, until it reached the height of three feet. Feathers, ropes of pearls, gauze trimmings, ribbons and artificial flowers were loaded upon the head.

The French revolution caused a great change in the style of dressing. Now a woman wore her hair rather becomingly, her dress had low neck, short sleeves and a sane waist line, and her skirt was full, though not extreme.

A little later the return to the classic brought in the empire gown, with its short skirt, high waist, low neck and short sleeve. This lasted until ermine came into vogue again, which then held the floor throughout the middle of the nineteenth century.

You who cannot recall can fancy the appearance of figure 7. Her basque was very tight and uncomfortable and so was her skirt, but the extra material in her train, held away from her body in set folds and ruffles by stiff crinoline bustles, amply made up for the scantiness elsewhere.

While wearing this most fashionable "Grecian Bend," the mode was called, a woman had to walk something like a kangaroo, with her hands held up in front and her entire body thrown forward at a precarious angle. The waist of this dress was rich tan, the skirt was a very bright cerise and the parasol a delicious peacock blue. There was nothing masculine about this costume.

COLORES FOLLOW BLACK AND WHITE

With all this talk of black and white and neutral, it will not do to neglect the colored productions or else one will be given the idea that we are more or less in uniform.

One of the latest notions in trimmings is the Mexican plume flower, copied very exactly in its natural green and scarlet. I can't say as yet how far it will take the general fancy, but it is being applied to the trimming of black velvet hats by one or two milliners.

Certainly the brightest of the colors made up are the lighter moujik greens. A velvet toque of this shade, draped very high at the back, rests on a narrow rolled brim covered with skunk. Behind, continuing the upward slope of the drapery, is an immense sheaf of black aigrettes.

Felts are also shown in all three shades of this green. One of the medium size with the brim rolled back at the side, has for trimming the head and tail plumage of a silver pheasant—a rare and beautiful bird. The same milliner who shows this model is using a couple of its tail feathers to trim toques—one in mole skin and the other in seal.

One of the smaller cabriolet shapes in darker green velvet is trimmed with a tail cockade of white lace held on by a strap of sable.

Panna violet is another of the colors selected for felts. A soft toque of this felt is punched in here and there in amusing fashion, and apparently held in this shape by a band of skunk laid diagonally across its front, the end of which passes through a loop of silver braid.—Millinery Trades Review.

MERRYOSKY WIDOWICH

Which is some name, to be sure, but which also makes it unnecessary to say that the wearer of the rather peculiar but perfectly charming costume is a subject of Czar Nick. In St. Petersburg the populace proclaim her the greatest actress that ever was; it was there she made a pronounced hit in the role of the "Merry Widow."

Girl's Dress With Panel Front

The frock representing a design that requires little trimming is always popular. The dress here shown may be made with a finish of braid or stitching and a bit of lace or embroidery for the yoke facings. The fronts are outlined by a panel that is overlaid at the upper part to simulate a yoke. The panel forms part of the gored skirt in front. The sleeve has a deep cuff.

Cashmere, challis, serge, gingham, chambray, dimity, linen or other materials now in vogue may be used for this design. The pattern is cut in four sizes: 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. It requires 3 1/2 yards of 36-inch material for the 12-year size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

"TOM" FOOLS S. P. C. A.

This is "Tom," one of the features of the New York Hippodrome this season. In a certain act a lame horse was needed. Tom was trained to limp in a most distressing manner. An officer of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals demanded that Tom be removed from the stage. When the officer started to lead the horse away his foot suddenly became well and, just to show that he wasn't lame, Tom did a cake-walk and a two-step in the presence of the surprised official.

HIS GIDDY LIFE

"What? A quarter to see the circus, and here only last week I let you go out at night to see the eclipses of the moon! Young man, do you want your life to be one perpetual round of gaiety?"—Arkansas Traveler.

Famous Artist's Cartoon in Favor of the Harem Skirt

Harry Furness, the greatest of English cartoonists now doing active work, is an ardent defender of the so-called "harem skirt." He is in dead earnest about it, is drawing cartoons setting forth the advantages of the new skirt to the ridicule of the cumbersome skirt of conventional style, and has even gone to the length of writing a letter to the London Times about it—which is considerable length to go.

But Furness refuses to call the skirt the "harem." He says that is a scandalous and undeserved name. He prefers to call the skirt the "ankle skirt."

Furness hopes that the new mode has come to stay. He calls it "a sensible and sanitary" attire, both comfortable and attractive. He calls the hobble, the crinoline and the other skirts of the conventional shape "the microbe-gathering costumes the ever-designing dressmaker invents," and, further, that "apart from its utility and picturesqueness, the ankle skirt is, when compared with the others I have mentioned, the only decent one."

CARTOON BY HARRY FURNESS, MADE FOR THE LONDON MIRROR

This is pretty strong evidence in favor of the "jupe eolotte" for Harry Furness is some pumpkins among the newspaper artists of the other side. But stronger evidence is the cartoon printed above, which Furness drew for the London Mirror to prove his point. This cartoon makes the conventional skirt look positively indecent, as well as extremely ugly.

Dear Miss Grey: What will make my hands nice and white? Mine are so red.—School Girl.

Ans. For redness of the hands beat together one ounce of clear honey, one ounce of almond oil, the juice of a lemon and the yolk of a raw egg. Apply at night to the hands.

Dear Miss Grey: Does dandruff hurt the hair, and what can I do to prevent dandruff from forming?—Mrs. A. M.

Ans. Dandruff causes the hair to fall, ruins the gloss and causes a dull, lifeless appearance. Clean brushes, daily attention to the removal of dust and dirt, the discarding of thick, heavy "rats" or hair, the airing and sunning of the hair are preventative that any woman can use. If the hair is carefully groomed every day dandruff will not form to an alarming extent.

Dear Miss Grey: Will you print a shampoo formula, please.—Miss V.

Ans. Use lemon juice and white of egg. Break white of egg into wash bowl, add 1 pint of cold water, and beat to a froth with hands. Add juice of 1 or 2 lemons, rub into scalp and rinse twice.

Dear Miss Grey: Will you please tell me what is good for chapped lips?—Miss V.

Ans. Lips dry and constantly chapped are apt to indicate a poor condition of the blood, so that a person who has this symptom would do well to consult a physician as to her general health. But whether or not this is necessary, external preparations, applied locally, will relieve any irritation and sometimes effect a cure. When chapping takes the form of deep cracks, almost like cuts, benzoin is the best application that can be made. Grease for that purpose is not desirable, as the skin must be drawn together and dried in order that it may heal. This is the action of gum benzoin. A bit should be carried in one's purse or bag, applying it when needed. Care should be taken that the gum is kept antiseptically clean.

OCCUPATION; JUST WORKS

A woman was called as a witness in court last week and counsel asked:

Q: What is your occupation, Mrs. ...?

A: It's a funny question to ask, my dear, replied. "I have no occupation. I am a married woman. I only sweep and wash and dust and iron and bake and prepare meals and wash dishes and take care of the tables and my husband."

And not a soul in the solemn courtroom caught the point.

But they were all men.

The onions are pulled from the ground, thrown into rows and left for a few days to dry. Then the tops are cut off, the onions graded and sacked and shipped to market.

Prices range from one to two cents a pound to the grower. Many of the best onions are kept and set out in the spring to produce seed.

There is always a good demand for choice seed and many hundreds of acres are devoted to that one occupation. For the man, woman or family having a small piece of land that can be used for cropping, the onion offers an exceptionally good investment.

TRYING TIMES

"No; just struggling along."

"But that fine adding machine!"

"A demonstrator left it on trial!"

"That new typewriter!"

"An agent forced it on me for a month."

"At least those expensive cigars denote ready money."

"No; I smoke ten and return the rest."—Washington Herald.
