The capacity of brickmaking ma-chines has been increased from 100,000 a few years ago to 250,000 and 300,000 by a speeding-up process and the intro fuction of the double die system, while wages and number of employes have not increased proportionately. By the introduction of patent setting machine, the green-brick setters, who formerly made $5 and $6 per day on the plecework system, have been eliminated and compelled to see other employment than brickmaking, selile those few who have been retained to work around the new machine have had their wages ra-duced to $2.50 per day.

This is the answer of the Liberal Junta, operating in Les Angeles, to peace talk by Madero and Diaz.

On the top floor of a rooming house in a poor section of the city, these men are directing and aiding the revolution, denying themselves sometimes bare necessities that there may be more to help free their country.

"We will fight until we are dead os Mexico is really ruled by the people and not by a despot. We will fight until our people cease to be exploited by foreign money kings.

In the middle of the room sat Ricardo Flores Magon, who served eighteen months in the penitentiary at Florence, Ariz., a prisoner of Uncle Sam because he was a political enemy of the Mexican despot.

There were dozens of Mexicans scattered about the room, some reading, others writing and every now and then the crowd would be added to by a new arrival, who, after a hurried conversation with Magon, would hurry away. But through all the activity there could be seen the gaunt welf of poverty.

"Why will we keep on fighting if peace is declared?" continued Lerma.

"Because we cannot accept the promises of a mina like Diax who can keep

"Having failed to obtain justice in the capitalist courts we now appeal our case to the high tribunal of our comrades and fellow workers on behalf of our comrades and fellow workers on behalf of our contrade. Vincent Buccafori, who has been sentenced to ten years in Sing Sing prison.

"He dared to be a man. He defended his honor and life from the insults and assaults of a man who not justisfied to partially control our comrades means of fivelihood sought even to control his actions outside of the work shop.

"Vincent Buccaforl, a shoe worker of no mean ability, had worked in the shop of J. M. Dodd for a long time, was respected and loved by his shopmates, was thought well of by Mr. Wilt coriginal name Vitelli, a fugitive from the prisons of Italy), foreman of the shop, until he showed courage and menhood to join a union of his class, working levotedly for the welfare of his shopunates and acted as shop delegate for them.

Foreman Becomes Merciless

Buccafori having done this, Wilt became more and more a merciless driver, wielding his power with arrogance over Buccafori even-more than upon the others who had dared to organize.

This suddenly arquired enmity culminated when Wilt noticed Buccafori collecting money for the union, in a threat, Within a week, upon my word, you will be discharged, He denied work to his fellow worker and when asked the reason replied, To show you that you belong to the union.

The numerous outrages and insults numerous outrages and insults heaped upon our fellow worker were climaxed when, of Dec. 1, 1910, he was insulted and then discharged from his position. Succafori reported his case to the superintendent of the factory and was reinstated, much to the discondiure of Mr. Wilt.

The following morning Buccafori reported for work, the foreman came to him with the money due for the work done during the week and shouted at him. Here is your money. Now go or I will throw you from the window.

"Buccafori replied, You are the spy and rufflan; you want to take the bread from the mouths of my family." Wilt at once grabbed him and struck him a ter-rific blow in the mouth, causing blood to flow freely. Workers intervened, but Wilt ordered them all back to their benches, yelling out, I will attend to this man myself."

Idfe Is Menaced

The victim with blood flowing from his mouth picked up his coat and hat and started for the door, saying to his shopmates that he would go and report the occurrence to the owner. But the foreman was determined that the story of the assault should not reach the of the assau, should not reach the office, rushed at him with a heavy shoe last in his hand, reaching a position between the door and the worker. The angry foreman threatened the worker degree.

All reference to the union activity and its bearing in the case were excluded by the judge. All the witnesses, ciuded by the judge. All the witnesses, including the superintendent, who sat prompting Prosecutor Martin, had to admit on the stand the unwarranted and brutal assault on Buccafori, the excessive anger of the foreman and the general reliability of Buccafori as a

"To this the workers replied with a strike. The workers were beaten only after thirteen weeks of struggle, in which the whip of hanger was used most effectively. They have returned to work and prepared themselves for another struggle at an opportune time. But they made the bosses pay dearly for the miseries and outrages of the most. It cost the shoe bosses nearly a hullion dollars to wage the fight against the members of this organization.

"Feeling sore and revengedal, the association sought to rush matters so that the trial be held in the midst, of the strike; and who knows, had not the power and influence of the organization and its friends come to the rescue, the fellow worker war'd by now have been effectrocated.

will take a bunch of Chicago fight fans to the scene of the encounter.

Fred Gilmore, who will second Spike, has been training him hard for the meet and also to meet several others later in the month. Among those whom Spike is tentatively billed to meet are several top-notch local weiter-weights.

Both of the boys are doing nice, clean work in their training and, without a doubt, one of them will have a leg under the weiter-weight title when the smoke of the battle has cleared away.

FIGHT fans who have been watching the training of Philip Schlossberg, light heavyweight champion of the navy, now stationed in the Chicago recruiting office, see in him possibilities for one of the best middle-weights in the world. His exhibition work against Cleve Hawkins, a clever negro middle-weight, showed a splendid build and a vicious kick in either hand. Wednesday he put the gloves on with Illa Vincent, the Cuban wrestler, and jolfed the hopes from him in a straight for the jaw. He fights much like Stanley Ketchel.

CHICAGO'S K. O. Brown did some rough work Wednesday and tooks to be in good condition.

It was an erratic battle that the Naps and Sox placed on display, the nineteen safe hits and many brilliant plays being mingled with seven fielding and twelve oattery errors.

The Sox took the lead in ... rst inning, but were overhauled and passed in the third. In the seventh the score was tied and remained even until the first half of the ninth, when the White Sox went into the lead again, but only for a few minutes, for the Cleveland players batted out a victory in the last half of the final round.

Plans for entertaining the Waseda Japanese University baseball team were completed today, and a large delega-tion will meet the Nipponese tomorrow morning. During their four days' stay in Chicago the Japs will be the guests at numerous banquets, tens and smok-ers. They leave Chicago for Monmouth, Ill., Tuesday.

Big league scouts are rushing to Lake Forest today to observe future work of Pitcher Smith of Lake Forest, who pitched a 10-inning, no-hit game against Mommouth yesterday, winning his own game, 1 to 0, with a long hit in the tenth.

JAPANESE SLANT ON BASEBALL Capt. Mahoney of Notre Dame, Ind. has reported to Manager Griffith of the Cincinnati Reds. He signed a contract with the expectation of reporting in June, but the college authorities heard of it and dropped him from the team. NOTE.—According to H. Takasugi, professor in English at Waseda university, Tokio, and manager of the Waseda baseball team, now touring this country, baseball, ten years after its introduction in Japan, has come to be the Nipponese national game. The little brown collegians, on their first appearance in America, have already shown themselves to be wonderfully skilled on the diamond.

How do the Japanese size up the American game? There is a question that will interest baseball fans the world over. The Daily Socialist has secured the answer from the Waseda players themselves. Through an interpreter, one Waseda player in each position has described for this newspaper the problems that he has met and how he has attempted to solve them.

of Oriental methods. Marshland growing was supposed to be the only way.

There was nothing American about it—very little effort to cheapen production according to the new theory of farming. That was the old era in rice growing. Then, "after the war." when labor conditions in the South became unsettled, the industry dwindled until there wasn't much left of it; and for a long time it languished, awaiting some new impulse.

The impulse was given when somebody took it into his head that rice might be grown under conditions altogether different from the old.

Rice, to be sure, must stand with its feet in the water during its growing period; but the new growers conceived the idea of flooding the crop artificially from wells or irrigating ditches, thus giving control of the supply and permitting the work of seeding and harvesting to be done or dry land. The Dakota wheat farmer has today no ensier working conditions than the rice grower of the southern prairies.

The new rice fields of Arkansas give the best illustration of the change that has come about, for there the work is entirely modern; none of the practices is a survival.

It is only seven or eight years since the first experi-

In the first place, rice had never before been grown in that country, and, in the next place, this fellow wasn't going at it right. They knew! Nevertheless he went shead to his first harvest, when he gathered some rice of a very superior quality. His crop broke no records, but it proved a point.

From his tiny patch of that year prairie rice culture has developed to proportions that make it one of the livest farming interests in all the Southwest.

In 1969 rice was harvested from about 30,000 acres in Arkansas. That crop did make a record—a world's record: 75 bushels to the acre, with an average net profit to the grower of $55 to the acre.

Not one of the rice farmers of that year was experienced in the business; they were mostly northern and

Not one of the rice farmers of that year-was experienced in the basiness; they were mostly northern and eastern men-old wheat farmers, some of them; and cothers were mere townsmen, who had been drawn into the work by the fame of what some of the pioneers had done in recent years. The odd feature of it was that not one grower of all the lot, whether old hands or novices at farming, made a fallare.

Of course, there's no stopping it now. In the last season the harvest was gathered from about 100,000 aeros—a threefold increase in a twelvemonth. The yield in 1910 we'sa hit better than in the preceding year.

It is foretold that in 1911 the acreage will be trebled again. Siee growing on these prairies is getting something of a reputation.—Saturday Evening Post.

War=:What For?

This is the title of a remarkable book by George Kirkpatrick. It is a startling expose of militarism. It is biting and sarcastic, logical and powerful and withal most sympathetic and helpful.

To understand the purpose and meaning of the vast expenditure for military preperations and the continual efforts to induce, often by glaringly false statements, men to enlist we must comprehend the nature of government.

It is really a government of the capitalist class, by the capitalist class, and for the capitalist class. That class makes the laws, declares war and gains by it (as a class) no matter who wins.

The government puts out lying advertisements to induce young, inexperienced men to enlist. Why do the government officials who are in possession of all the fact not tell the truth about army life and its effect upon the men? Because if they did nobody but the most degenerate would enjit degenerate would en'ist. Here are a few figures and facts: Insanity is one of the chief causes for dismissal from the army.

The debasing vices inherent in army life drive men to insanity. The number of desertions are steadily increasing in spite of the brutal punishments inflicted for it. In the years 1907, 1908 and 1909, respectively, 4,534, 4,585 and 5,023 men deserted.

Venereal diseases lead all the rest in the army. The men, in stead of "being clean," as the flamboyant advertisements put out by the government say, are rotten. Secretary of War Dickinson says:
"Venereal diseases cause a greater sick rate than all others added together." President David Starr Jordan of Stanford University quotes a letter from a soldier in the Philippines: "Twenty-one per cent of our soldiers are attacked with venereal diseases." Following the Sparish war, venereal diseases, as the cause of discharge com the army, increased 250 per cent.

Here is part of a letter from a commanding officer of the British

"Please send young and attractive women, as laid down in the Quarter Master's General Circular No. 21A. There are not women enough; they are not attractive enough. I HAVE ORDERED THE NUMBER OF PROSTITUTES TO BE INCREASED, and have given especial instruction as to additional women being young and of attractive appearance.'

The capitals are ours. We wish to bring home to whoever see this paper that NO INFAMY IS TOO LOW FOR CAP

What is the moral standard of the soldier? Listen to two high authorities:

Mr. Taft said to the young soldier cadets at West Point in 1908:

"The plainest of your duties is to keep your mouth shut and obey orders. As a soldier you must forego the privilege of free speech."

Emperor William of Germany told the young men in his army at Potsdam, November, 1901: "You are now my soldiers. You have given yourselves to me body and soul. There is but one enemy for you, and that is my enemy. It may happen that I shall order you to fire on your own brothers and fathers. In such a case you are bound to obey me without a murmur." When a man becomes a soldier he becomes an unthinking tool of capitalism. He must be prepared to shoot his own father and brothers. His manhood goes into eclipse and for the time being he ceases to be a man.

Getting Excited

The Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser is getting excited. It not only considers Congressman Berger's resolution to amend the constitution "rot," but sees in it a "repetition of the reign of terror in Paris in which, by an act of the majority, the bloodiest chapter in human history was written."

The Advertiser is afraid of the people. It stands with Alexander Hamilton, the aristocrat, who wanted to embody a property qualification for the franchise in the constitution, and not with qualification for the franchise in the constitution, and not with Thomas Jefferson, who insisted upon "placing into the hands of the people an efficient weapon (the ballot) by which they could resist the encroachment of the aristocracy." encroachment of the aristocracy."

Since that time a profound economic change has taken place. Then wealth was fairly well distributed. Those who had little

Then wealth was fairly well distributed. Those who had little or nothing could gain a livelil.cod and amass wealth by going to the frontier. The whole continent lay before them.

Today wealth is monopolized.

More than that—production is no longer by individuals or by small groups of workers. It is by vast and expensive machinery, operated by large numbers of workers.

Then one man made shoes and another freighted goods with his own wagon. Now shoes are made by a group of workers, each making some small part of the shoe on a machine owned by somebody else. Freighting is done by railroads owned, not by the people who do the freighting, but by somebody else.

When the constitution was adopted the majority of the American people worked for themselves; now only a small percentage work for themselves, the great majority work for others.

Then it was believed that all men could attain economic independence through political equality under a representative form of government, but the experience of a hundred years has shown that the constitution of the eighteenth century fails to meet the requiremens of the twentieth century.

Wealth must be socialized. This can be done only by socialized.

wealth must be socialized. This can be done only by socializing the government; by making it a government of the people and for the people.

Congressman Berger's resolution is in accord with the trend of events and the Advertiser will have to take its chances with the people.

A Black Record

The climax to a black record was reached yesterday when the Illinois house killed the referendum.

The people at the last election demanded the referendum, it had been promised to them by the leaders of the Republican party and upon the strength of this promise many votes were cast. This had been promised to them by the leaders of the Republican party and upon the strength of this promise many votes were cast. That the politicians "after election" should forget their promises was to be required to the politicians and the deeper meaning of the initiative and referendum. The large were the content of the people and the large vote for the referendum that the large vote for the referendum that the large vote for the referendum. There were 89 votes for and 89 against it, but since it takes two-thirds to carry it was lost by nine votes.

The current arguments for the measure were well presented while the deeper meaning of the initiative and referendum was a most entirely ignored.

For the people to initiate laws, to discuss measures and finally to enact or reject them will educate them in-self-government. It will cause them to think and act-for themselves.

The great weakness of representative government by proxy and the profess are elected by the powerful, well-organized, big interests.

The arguments presented by the opponents of the measure were famboyant and noisy. They lacked sense and exposed lamentable is in the hands of climatic and the content of the content of the country seems to be a subject of the country seems to be a subject to the country seems to be a subject of the

Contrary to the teachings of our moral (or immoral) leaders in the intellectual world, the mental heavy-weights, like nuggets in a slutce basin, sluk to the bottom, while the mud and the basin was the tide. froth is often borne along on the tide

This is particularly true of those who create, who really add something to human knowledge or to social progress.

The innovators, the ablest men of all ages, have in but few cases reaped the benefits of their efforts, while the men who have developed or copieg their in-novatious have gathered their rewards.

Now what truth is there in this off-repeated and pious platitude that "in-tellectual ability is rewarded by suc-cess"? Under present society, what kind of intellectual effort brings sucand what kind, if any, is considered worthless by society?

Two factors in society make for high value, scarcity of supply and large demand. The supply of innovators in any line, great artists, teachers, inventors, is always limited, but the demand is intellect of this kind. He has a corner still smaller, due to the ignorance of the means of reproducting any invention.

In the case of artists and teachers, ignorance and superstition keep them from being appreciated until after their work of education is done. It is their followers who profit. Real educators, followers who profit. Real educators, makes for the capitalist.

Managerial ability never yet capitalized and action and to hope for the new and better things.

For this reason the foremost educators

Managerial ability never yet capitalized a factory. Neither did superior brains. Oftener it is effected, in part and teast, by that form of graft designated by the cuphonious and suggestive monosyllable, "pap.". Witness the case

These innovations are not profitable. commercially, therefore not successful. Society considers them worth but lite until after they become stale, and worn, and have received the time-honored stain of conventional respectabil-

In the field of industry, however, innovations and inventions are as a rule

This goes to the one who exploits the inventions. And how does the employer get the power of exploitation? By superior brains? Nay, nay; not so; but far otherwise.

No one would be so rash as to accuse the average capitalist of exceptional or menopole.

His ability is not creative, it is predatory; that is, in so far as he is a cap-italist. He may be a good manager, too, but a good manager cannot be bought body and soul for one-tenth of what he makes for the capitalist.

"THEN IT HAPPENED" (Our Daily Discontinued Story.)

Economic Tendencies BY CHARLES RLOPFENSTEIN

From my window I see a mother sparrow gathering material for a nest, she is entirely unconscious of the fact that her species has long reached the number that can survive the winter on the prevailing food supply, but continues to supply sparrows from which nature will select the survivors.

She will have a numerous and sturdy family of many broods; and if she and two of her children are left to dodge in and out during another spring time's showers and sunshine, she will have been more successful than the average

But here is the fate of every mother, in every specie, as we came across the asons together, seeking adaptations to the world, and fitting our lives to those who sought the same kind of food.

So working in the direction of natural selection, the ideal solution of the economic question, the eternal bread and butter question, is sought by bringing her race to that paradoxical point of perfection where it can thrive with-

Aye, the human mother, too, tried the same solution

She worked wonders, but she failed.

Her sons and daughters still must eat. But they have, however, in their turn, sought answer by working in another tendency. They solved the economic problem by acting on the source of food supply,

They found fire, agriculture, steam, and these relieved the stress of deadly competition, and finally the machine offers complete succor to the race from out the age-old battle.

Man's needs could now be met in superfluity from labor that is not more than exercise. The product of the modern loom would mantle hills instead of backs.

The clam shell of the equaw, and the wooden plowshare tugged by a cow, have been replaced by the tireless whirring of an ox of steel, and in his wake the arid vale smiles in a flood of golden grain. Our competitive productive struggle now exists only for our instructive remembrance of the wild, which is portrayed in our once most necessary functions, as in our greed, our jealousy, and lack of willingness to share earth's overplus of opportunity. As we translate the history of the race from out the caves where tools of stone reveal the primitive mode of life, and charred and broken human bones record a sordid feast, or as we reflect upon the mannish anthropid who slowly learned that death made room, and to this end adapted his inventive, we find mankind positioned in no such grotesque and unnecessary attitude as in our own short period of transition of learning to DISTRIBUTE. Abstractly how queer it is, when, by harnessing her forces, we have solved the problem that has bathed the earth in blood and tears and transformed land and sea into one stupendous sepulchre, that we do still retain that struggle as a relic in the proportion that we retain the savage instincts that we acquired in transcending the centuries of carnage. Man's food is no more the price of vitality.

Soon the babe from any mother's breast can rise to the limitations of his ability.

Catching at the hem of science, his mental steps are guided to his true relation to the world, and he has but now to learn to abandon his instinctive greed and superstition, to DISTRIBUTE earth's bounties, and abide in comfort

Editor Otis flooded California with extra copies (all paid for) of his woraclous newspaper to dis-credit Burns and the prosecution. Today Burns, Rogers and Otis are all in the same bed, unanimously and en-thusiastically striving to discredit or-ganized labor in the interest of organ-ized greed.
