EMANCIPATION

SECONDS "THE CALL TO THE COLORS" TO THE "SPY AGAINST I. W. W." PROTECTED BY COURT

Let me second the idea contained in "A Call to the Colors" in the last issue of Solidarity. There is "a call" declared. The coming convention should be made a council of war against our common enemy and not among ourselves. Right you are, "Ignatius." What is there to fight for among ourselves? Is the I. W. W. so big and powerful that its control is a matter of life and death to the working class? Is there no industry still unorganized to which we could devote our energies? Are the lumber jacks all in our ranks? Are the migratory, the steel and iron, the textile, the tannery, 200 men, bring them to Sacramento and clean out the present defense committee. In this case it had the dope. Goebel is well known in the I. W. W. he is a prominent around Ford Bragg and Eureka. Goebel tried last week to involve five fellow workers in an arson charge. He set fire to a barn near Perkins, but the men he was returned to the hall and reported. In the I. W. W. hall here three first discovered in time to save the hall. Goebel was expelled not a week too soon.

Sacramento, Calif., Aug. 6. All proceedings against F. W. Goebel, the Detroit detective, who was arrested with fellow workers Edmond, Edoustron and Starr, have been dismissed. All four were charged with disturbing the peace and a sentence of 30 days handed the three I. W. W. men should under the rulings of Judge Henderson, have been handed to the detective who provoked the disturbance by arresting the life of fellow worker Edmond. HOP BARONS WORRIED OVER LABOR

Offer Fancy Wages To Pickers. Hindus Refuse To Scab, Detective Tries To Foment Trouble

(Special to Solidarity)
Headquarters Hop Pickers Defense Committee, 114 Eye Street, Sacramento, Calif., Aug. 7, 1914. With the battle lines of the Ford and Suhr defense strike on the hop fields gathering and the clash only a few days off, the hop barons are agitated about another move of the I. W. W. Hop growers have aroused to the fact that even what hops they may get picked are not safe because they are exposed to about a million while in transit, both in the United States and on the wharves and rail lines of Europe. This will be read while the battle between the workers and the hop barons is actually being fought. Therefore there can be little of prediction as to the outcome now. As usual conflicting rumors come to the headquarters. Capitalist newspapers are stating that the barons have all the pickers they want. At the same time the sheriff of Yolo county is pleading that Yolo county the army of the unemployed. Hindus, who never before were paid more than $1.15 per day, are bringing information that the growers are offering them $3 flat per day. Hindus know the game of slowing up and would make good saboteurs at this rate. However, the Hindus swear they will not pick hops to come to the winos and female vagrants on the promise to pick hops. Meanwhile the battle lines are pitched.

Because a detective who has been infesting the I. W. W. hall here was decorated as a detective should be, three members of the I. W. W. got thirty days apiece and one of them got four months for carrying a gun. Frederick W. Goebel, who had a four-year card in the I. W. W., and who did work for the Burns men against Ford and Suhr last year, showed up about a month or two ago in Sacramento. He was advocating sabotage. About two weeks ago he took five very young members out to Perkins, treated to booze frequently and then set fire to a lot of straw near a barn as a "revolutionary measure." These boys put out the fire, returned to the hall and reported. Shortly thereafter three more were started in the I. W. W. hall here. Goebel was watched. After careful consideration it was intended to call Goebel before the committee and give him a chance to explain his actions. Fred Esmond, who is about five feet six, asked Goebel to come into the office. Goebel is a big fellow and turned on Esmond, saying, "You little son of a ---, I will get you," and made a motion toward his gun. Esmond grabbed Goebel's arm. Somebody smashed him. The row had overflowed into the street. John Edoustron, custodian of the hall, went out to help stop the row. Goebel was yelling "Help." Police and stool pigeons appeared like magic. The three men named above were arrested with Goebel. At the police station Goebel whispered something and was separated from the prisoners. Next day he appeared as a case committed to the hall and from the stand threatened to get fellow worker Scott, Lambert and Collier. When his own trial came up he was dismissed without fine or imprisonment.

Goebel now claims that he will rouse San Francisco locals, Fresno and Los Angeles to clean out the present defense committee. Goebel has been well known in the forests along the Pacific Coast. His card was taken out in Seattle. Any local desiring particulars can get them upon application to Sacramento. Goebel showed his bitterness against the I. W. W. in the open market when the case was in court, but one perfectly good detective has been spoiled. He is now in the employ of the Thiel Agency.

The Class Struggle in Canada

(Special to Solidarity)
Edmonton, Alberta, Aug. 3. Last winter a member of the Edmonton local I. W. W., named Frank Hiram Johnson, took up a homestead in the vicinity of Lac La Biche, some hundred miles or more northeast of here. During last February Johnson went to settle on his land. In May and June Johnson wrote certain letters to James Rowan (then secretary of this local) to the effect that he was in a hostile community. From these letters it would seem that his life was in danger. Therefore, Rowan with another member of this local, W. E. Barret, left here for Lac La Biche. Arriving there at Johnson's shack late on Sunday night, July 5th, they found Johnson dead. It is plainly evident that deceased was murdered, probably in his sleep, as his head was cut and battered in and was already maggoted. A bloodstained axe was found near the body and there was dried blood on the floor. The door of the shack was fastened from the inside and the finders of the body entered through a window. Rowan and Barret then started to walk to Colinton to inform the Mounted Police. Barret felt pulled out and he was left at Taylor's stopping place. Rowan pushed on to Colinton and gave information to the Mounted Police. From there he was told to go to Headquarters at Athabasca. After making a statement before a local J. P. Rowan was arrested on a charge of vagrancy and sentenced to six months' hard labor. A few days later he was allowed a $2,000 bail, pending a new trial. Barret was also arrested on a similar charge and given two months' hard labor. Although there was no incriminating evidence at the inquest, the jury recommended that Rowan and Barret be held. Subsequently they were charged with murder and tried at the next session of the supreme court. Previous to his death Johnson had been worried and threatened by the people in his vicinity. THE GREAT COMBATIONS

World-Wide In Scope, With Empires And Republics As Partners, They Are Now Making History As It Was Never Made Before

(A SERIES OF ARTICLES PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR SOLIDARITY BY JUSTUS EBERT)

The history of the modern industrial development in more senses than one it was in the oil industry and the first billionnaire was evolved. From the oil industry there has come an organic-liquid creature that gobbles up gas, electric, coal, railroad and other corporations; creating civil war in Pennsylvania and Colombia and fomenting international war in Mexico and elsewhere; besides projecting into modern life a young personage who is the personification of a power greater than that of the President of the United States, to whom emissaries give the snub bribe as becomes the welder of the transcendent industrial might of present-day society.

Great has been the history of the oil industry; but greater still are its future prospects. Formerly only an illuminant and lubricant, it has now become the dominant force in the world's motive force. Thanks to the modern fluid burners of every description and the turbines of huge ships, speed and usefulness to the automobile in brief set in motion the machinery of the world, however used. What coal was once to the nation of old, oil is now to the nation of today. Oil is now as essential to naval success and to mercantile shipping as was coal a coal base. Around this salient fact big struggles are now being waged. It has forced Mexico into the fore; and, with the assistance of the Panama Canal, it promises to give California a career. States will more completely destroy its fair reputation as the land of sunshine and flowers; making it, instead, the land of great economic conflicts and struggles.

Current facts illustrate this tendency. In No. 235, July 11th issue of Solidarity, under heading, "Boston Transport Workers' Notes," this information appears: "The steamers Massachusetts and Bunker Hill are on their summer cruise again. They are burning oil again this year and consequently only carry two firemen on a watch instead of eight, as in former years when they burned coal. Of course, there are no coal passers on these ships now, which means that on these two ships alone the crew has been cut down by about fifty men." On July 27, London cablegrams told of great English and German shipping lines joining in a big oil scheme, called the British Union Oil Co., with a capital of $60,000,000 formed to exploit the electric oil industry and to acquire control of the Union Oil Co. of that State. "The preponderance of shipping interests," says the cablegram, "gives strong support to the oil industry in the future to be more generally used in the mercantile service and that many of the group desire by this means to get control of ample supplies independent of other sources."

"This being so," the new company will be assured of a ready and growing market, while at the same time afford an impetus to the adoption of oil exclusively as fuel by shipping companies generally. It is argued, too, that this process will be greatly stimulated by the opening of the Panama Canal." In an article entitled, "Naval Use of Fuel Oil," in the "Questions," "The Wall Street Journal" declares: "The navies of the world in the future will use oil exclusively as fuel. The United States, Great Britain and Germany have already adopted fuel oil and practically every other country will soon be building nothing but oil burning dreadnaughts." The same journal goes on to show that none of the great nations is going to be dependent on other nations for its oil supply, but will back enterprises representative of their own interests in foreign lands. This fact, it claims, accounts for British government support of Lord Cowdray in Mexico, and the Royal-Dutch Shell Combine in India, Russia, Australia, etc.; also the large British shipping interests and other interests operating in California, as already indicated. On the subject of foreign combinations in California, the author writes in waxes eloquent. It contends that the British Union Oil Co., with its $60,000,000 capital, controls nearly one-third of California's output of close to 100,000,000 barrels yearly and fully one-half of its proved acreage." It asks, patriotically of course, "Does the Standard Oil bias so peculiar to all of its oil articles. Are we selling our birthrights for a mess of pottage? With the whole capitalist society practically a unit against us, there is big enough field for all of us to exercise our peculiar talents and ambitions in, without taking them to a convention where they are exercised destructively without any benefit either to ourselves or the working class whom we profess to represent. It makes the writer sick to the stomach to think of the problems in labor organization offered by the trusts and, at the same time, contemplate the childish antics of some of those intent on reforming the I. W. W., even to the extent of killing it. Such a talent for destruction is misplaced; it ought to be turned against the capitalist class, against the Dursts, Rockefeller and other representative capitalist interests, in the form of big organization work."

Here, in the East, in New York City, there is a vast field for all willing to help to organize. This field will never be plowed, and the varied mind of the capitalist class, why, the whole proceeding is ridiculous to contemplate! It's a joke, in which the wealthy plutocrats are the laughing stock. They are saving the capitalists the necessity of destroying them. They are committing suicide, though they know it not. Personally, when I contemplate the little oasis of I. W. W. in the desert of metropolitan capitalism, I am not at all surprised that many workmen in the oil industry, the precious stream is not approachable because of a few who block the way to defend it and keep it open for all—as they think and presume.

So let us out such nonsense. If we must fight, let us fight the capitalist class. If solidarity is our goal, the authority, then let's have some of that authority—and let's have it quick. The fight on the inside of the I. W. W. is not enough for all; on the inside it is out of place. So let us to see "Ignatius" suggestion—"The coming convention should be made a council of war against our common enemy and not among ourselves." Here's to a big ORGANIZING CONVENTION! NEW YORKER.

DURST SHORT-WEIGHTED PICKERS LAST YEAR

Last year Durst Brothers hop weather-vane on the row. Men would pack bags so they staggered under the weight. When put upon the scales they could pack the weight recorded. Several women who had the railroad scales were weighed. At the railroad one was 145 pounds. At Durst she only tipped 110 pounds. Another weighed 195 pounds at the depot and only 160 pounds at Durst's. These witnesses made the railroad scales more weight. One of the tactics this year should be to put every body wise to this little, much graft. In the Marysville Appeal we learn that a general griped Durst for scissoring. That is the Appeal claims that Durst already has 200 workers. This paper reports that there was great joy in Wheatland, when Peter Peterman, ble in with scissoring and a general griped Durst. Another choice recruit rode a bicycle and was weighed by a lame man. He was welcome also. Let all such and the militia and gunmen spread the hops for Durst this year. Everything is progressing well. The Hindus came in this morning and reported that they would work for any hop picker this year.—Hop Pickers' Defense Com. Bulletin.

HARVEST BOUND

All rebels coming west toward Minneapolis and the harvest fields, can help colonize the job at Rochester, Fairbairn, and Owatonna, all in Minnesota. Construction paving, sewer and water work to be had at $2.50 a day, 10 hours, but can be made eight hours with the aid of a few more rebels. Boarding houses stand good for chuck and room. The indentments are—a good lively town, three hand concrete a week by full park and recreation grounds, and the best job in the world with free medical attention to all who cannot pay. City officials give prisoners eye-eyepore in the morning and three dollars a week for a day, which is brought over by smiling socialist comrade whose features set as we look at us out such nonsense. If you want the full product of your toil, come to the revolution. If you want to keep you in the city's police force, is a physical culture work force a day, which is brought over by smiling socialist comrade whose features set as we look at us out such nonsense.
