

The following letter from the Secretary of the National Industrial Convention, recently held in New York City...

TO THE DELEGATE OF THE LOWELL FEMALE LABOR ASSOCIATION...

It is six or seven years since the working classes of this country first discovered and proclaimed that there was some radical evil in our social system...

At the National Industrial Convention, many of those who were assembled...

On one point there had long been no difference of opinion among the friends of Labor...

To ascertain the cause of evil must be ferreted out, and that was found to be Labor Monopoly...

But for Land Monopoly, the Miner and the Sailor would not complain from their condition of hardship and suffering...

The Convention was well aware that there were various other good measures of much interest to the working classes...

For a further exposition of the views of the Convention, particularly of the subject of Factory Labor, permit me to refer you to the following plans of organization published in the Young America of the 19th and 21st inst.

and, for my own views on Female Labor, to the Working Men's Advocate of March last...

Electing occurring here on Tuesday next, we have the pleasure of inviting you to the National Convention...

From the N. Y. Young America National Reform Association Mr. Evans was called to the chair...

The Chairman read the pledge, and called particular attention to it. The more signers we can count to the pledge, the more votes we shall likely poll at every election...

Mr. Evans was called to the chair. The Secretary in his place. The Chairman read the pledge, and called particular attention to it.

Mr. Ryckman was called to the platform. Being indisposed, he should have little to say. The Chairman then had several propositions for organizing the Industrial Guards...

The Ladies Room.—We understand that the young ladies employed in the Spinning Room of Mill No. 2, Dwight Corporation, made a very quiet and successful strike...

Resolved, That the National Reformers of this country, and the working men of New England, at their late Convention, should hesitate with regard to political action...

elections, perhaps they will understand what can be done by political action. The abolition of imprisonment for debt, the check of paucity, and other monopolies, and to whatever measure of progress has been effected, were mainly through the instrumentality of the Workingmen's party organized in 1839...

(Cheers.) Among other objects to be secured by the new constitution, we hoped the Anti-Red counties would fight the battle manfully for the election of his delegates.

The resolution of Mr. C. was then adopted. The Secretary stated that the remaining debt of the Association, for election, missionary, and all other expenses, is something less than $30.
